Unemployment Insurance Scheme to Be Debated With Federal Leaders in Ottawa

LIBERALS READY TO AID SCHEME

Alberta Premier Suggests Other Amendments to the Constitution of Canada

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—The Dominion-Provincial unemployment conference which Premier Bennett is sponsoring probably will be held very early in January, but it is possible the discussion will take place in the latter part of next month.

Edmonton, Nov. 23.—Hope that Premier Bennett would not stop at unemployment insurance in dealing with important matters that affect the Canadian constitution was expressed by Premier J. E. Brownlee today in commenting on the Dominion Government's announcement that an inter-provincial conference would be held to discuss contributory unemployment insurance.

The Alberta Government would be prepared to support the amendment to the constitution proposed by the Prime Minister, Premier Brownlee said. "With respect to a number of other important matters our Canadian constitution is out of date and sadly needs overhauling," he concluded.

ONTARIO STATEMENT

Toronto, Nov. 23.—"Personally I am all for it, but it has not yet been discussed by the Ontario Government," declared Premier George S. Henry today with reference to Premier Bennett's announcement a scheme of contributory unemployment insurance would be discussed at Ottawa in January.

"The biggest problem is the matter of apportioning the contributions," he said. "We shall have to adopt a different method than that of Great Britain, where the scheme seems to have fallen down. But I feel unemployment insurance is bound to come."

MANITOBA'S AID

Winnipeg, Nov. 23.—"We shall be very glad to join wholeheartedly in making the conference a success," Premier John Bracken of Manitoba said today when asked to comment on the announcement of an inter-provincial conference on unemployment insurance.

Greta Garbo May Return This Way

Famous Swedish Star Said to Be Contemplating Returning to Hollywood By Pacific Route; Seeks to Avoid Ordeal of Facing Crowds at New York

Greta Garbo, famous Swedish screen actress who is now in Europe, may return to Hollywood by way of the Pacific in order to avoid the crush at New York.

There has been a great deal of speculation as to whether Miss Garbo would return to Hollywood. But it is now conceded that she will return to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Co. by the spring with a brand new contract for a series of pictures.

Since Garbo left Hollywood for her home in Sweden she has had a strenuous time avoiding reporters and news cameramen, but she is becoming accustomed to them and might not mind the publicity so much if it did not attract great mobs of people eager to see her.

She recently visited London and Paris, where great crowds swarmed about her wherever she went, causing her to return hurriedly to Stockholm and retire to the secluded island castle which she recently purchased from the estate of Ivar Kreuger, the late Swedish match king.

It is now reported from Europe that Garbo has become so alarmed at the prospect of being again mobbed by the clamoring fans of New York that she may consider returning to the United States by the Pacific route.

Should the great star decide to do this she will probably board a steamship at Marseilles and travel by way of Suva, to the Orient, crossing from China and Japan either by way of Victoria or Honolulu to Los Angeles.

It is safe to assume that whatever she decides upon Miss Garbo will complete her traveling arrangements with the utmost secrecy.

The general impression on the other side of the Atlantic appears to be that Miss Garbo will be set out on her return to the film studio.

Hitler Would Rule Without Parliament

Nazi Chieftain Tells President Formation of Government in Germany on Parliamentary Basis Impossible

Berlin, Nov. 23.—Adolf Hitler, Nazi chieftain, told President Hindenburg today the formation of a government on a parliamentary basis was both impossible and undesirable.

The German cabinet crisis could be solved only with a cabinet directly responsible to the presidential authority.

Hitler told the President such an authoritarian presidential cabinet should be authorized, if necessary, to govern without parliament. The Nazi leader said he was ready to head such a government and place his movement at the disposal of the chief executive for that purpose.

FURTHER NEGOTIATIONS

The National Socialist leaders indicated they believed Hindenburg was weakening in his opposition to Hitler. At any rate, they said all the doors had been left open for further negotiations.

The stock market, anticipating the establishment of a new presidential government, was cheerful today. Gains of one or two points were sustained at the close.

BRITISHERS WIN DEBATE

Vancouver Judges Deadlocked, Appeal to Audience of Over 1,000 For Decision

British Empire Must Not Follow Moscow Road, Say Winners; Here To-morrow

Vancouver, Nov. 23.—By a narrow majority of a popular vote, after the four judges were deadlocked, the touring British debating team, comprising Lord Justice of the University of Wales and Hector McNeil of the University of Glasgow, were declared victors over the University of British Columbia, represented by Neil Perry, Victoria, and Victor Dryer, yesterday evening.

The visitors upheld the negative of the subject: "Resolved that the British Empire must follow the Moscow road." An audience of more than 1,000 overflowed the Hotel Vancouver ballroom and endorsed each speaker by wild applause.

After the judges, Major Harold Brown, W. H. Malkin, J. W. DeB. Farris, K.C., and Rev. W. A. Pritchard of K.C., announced that they were evenly divided on the issue, a standing vote was requested by the chairman, R. J. Cromie, publisher of The Vancouver Sun. So close was the result that many declared the University of B.C. team was the popular choice.

Capitalism was condemned by all four speakers. The teams differed only in the degree.

While the B.C. men advocated following the example of Russia, the British debaters recommended evolution of an entirely new system.

COMMUNISM INEVITABLE

In announcing the project the committee in charge of Education Week voices its appreciation of the co-operation of the schools in making possible the broadcast to the schools of radio sets with loud speakers will be installed.

At the same time, the Chief Executive declared a United States commission should be created to receive suggestions on the war debt problem and to report to Congress such recommendations as they deem desirable.

"I have stated on many occasions my opposition to cancellation. Furthermore, I do not feel the American people should be asked to make further sacrifices. I have held, however, that advantages to us could be found by other forms of tangible compensation than cash, such as expansion of markets for products of American agriculture and labor. There are other possible compensations in economic relations which might be developed on study which would contribute to recovery of prices and trade. Such compensations could be made mutually advantageous. These things might serve to ease our difficulties of exchange in some countries and to meet the question of inability of some of them otherwise to pay."

CREDIT IN U.S. FOR BRITISH

New York, Nov. 23.—The New York Evening Post said today that according to persistent reports in the financial district, New York banking interests, headed by J. P. Morgan and Company, had assured private London bankers a substantial credit would be advanced to support sterling, if needed as a result of payment by the British treasury of the $95,000,000 of war debt due the United States December 15.

FIELD OF DISCUSSION

"It is unthinkable that within the comity of nations and the maintenance of international peace, such as expansion of markets for products of American agriculture and labor. There are other possible compensations in economic relations which might be developed on study which would contribute to recovery of prices and trade. Such compensations could be made mutually advantageous. These things might serve to ease our difficulties of exchange in some countries and to meet the question of inability of some of them otherwise to pay."

Hoover Issues Statement After Conferring To-day With Congressional Leaders, Following Yesterday's Talk With Roosevelt

Ready to Discuss Debts With Nations

Democratic Leaders Go From White House to Conference With Roosevelt at Hotel

Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 23.—President Hoover today declared himself formally opposed to suspension of December 15 payments due on war debts and recommended the United States Congress create "an agency to exchange views" with debtor nations on international financial obligations.

In a lengthy formal statement following his conference to-day with Congressional leaders of both the Republican and Democratic parties, the President declared that as to the suspension of installments due December 15, no facts have been presented by the debtor governments which would justify such action.

At the same time, the Chief Executive declared a United States commission should be created to receive suggestions on the war debt problem and to report to Congress such recommendations as they deem desirable.

"I have stated on many occasions my opposition to cancellation. Furthermore, I do not feel the American people should be asked to make further sacrifices. RELIEF PROTEST IS SENT TO OTTAWA

Fraser Valley Reeves' Association Declares New Scheme Announced By B.C. Government Entirely Inadequate

Canada Press
New Westminster, Nov. 23.—Telegrams of protest against the recently announced provincial relief programme were sent to-day to Hon. W. A. Gordon, Federal Minister of Labor; Hon. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce; and Hon. J. M. MacKenzie, M.P. for Vancouver Centre. This was the result of a decision made by the Fraser Valley Reeves' Association at an emergency meeting held yesterday afternoon. The association declared the proposed relief scale was absolutely inadequate.

Mayor A. Wells Gray, M.P. of New Westminster declared in connection with the provincial government's decision to grant $100,000 toward municipal relief, that the municipalities would be far better off to give the government a similar amount and have the latter handle the entire matter. It was unfair for the government to force many municipalities into bankruptcy by its relief programme. The government had taken virtually every source of taxation, leaving little for municipalities. The government was even collecting taxes on the cheques of the relief workers, he said.

DIRECT TO OTTAWA
Reeve R. C. McDonald of Coquitlam, one of the representatives of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, who went to Victoria last week to confer with relief, declared direct action could be obtained now only from Ottawa. Hon. J. W. Jones, Provincial Minister of Finance, had been definite as to the extent to which his government would go with relief.

TEN PER CENT SHARE
On the suggestion of Reeve A. D. Paterson of Delta, a resolution was passed declaring the municipalities' share of relief could not exceed 10 per cent of the total cost. Reeve Paterson suggested the Federal Government, having the greatest power of taxation, should pay 90 per cent and the province 10 per cent.

Members of the association were invited by Mayor Gray to attend a meeting in the New Westminster City Hall Friday, forenoon at 10:30 o'clock, when regulations concerning unemployment relief will be discussed with Major J. G. Furdman, head of the Provincial Relief Board, and C. N. New Westminster.

MAN LEAVES NOTE AND ENDS LIFE
Associated Press
New York, Nov. 23.—Blair P. Scott, Baltimore lawyer and religious writer, jumped to his death from the seventh floor of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel yesterday, leaving behind a note that said he was willing to die "that self-love, self-interest, self-justification may not triumph over our people."

FINANCE BILL IN AUSTRALIA

Canberra, Australia, Nov. 23.—"Should the United States force Britain to pay her war debt instalment this December it will probably cost Australia £2,500,000," declared Premier J. A. Lyons in the House of Representatives to-day.

The Prime Minister was moving a financial relief bill which involves a grant of £2,000,000 for direct relief, allows for the remission of certain taxes and offers assistance to wheat growers.

"Our promised remission of taxes may be short-lived," he continued, "as Australia cannot expect continued exemption from the debt payments to Britain under such threatening circumstances."

TO INCREASE LUMBER SALES
Tacoma, Nov. 23.—(Associated Press)—Agreement on the advisability and practicability of employing a capable technical and contact man to keep in touch with all state and county highway and other public construction work during 1933 and to advance the use of lumber in such construction as far as possible, was reached to-day by the central wood promotion committee of Western Washington, which held meetings here.

TRADE TREATIES BEFORE SENATE

Bills Completed Yesterday in Commons Are Sent to Second Chamber

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—After a stormy passage through the Commons, the four trade treaties negotiated by Canada at last summer's Imperial Economic Conference here, to-day moved on to the Senate for the approval of that body. For the greater part of six weeks the treaties were the subject of keen and, at times, bitter debate in the House.

The contention continued to the very end as third reading of the ratifying bills yesterday brought forth final protests from the opposition and resulted in a full-dress division of the House on each treaty.

The key treaty was the one with the United Kingdom, toward which most of the opposition attack was directed. The others were with the Irish Free State, South Africa and Southern Rhodesia.

The United Kingdom treaty passed by a vote of 84 to 42 the Liberals voting solidly against it, and the Conservatives for it, with the Independents divided.

SOUTH AFRICAN TREATY
On the South African treaty the vote was 92 to 48.

The Southern Rhodesian treaty received the support of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and most of the Liberals because the increased tariffs they objected to in the United Kingdom treaty do not figure in this agreement. It passed by 105 votes to 16.

At first it appeared the Liberals would also support the Irish Free State treaty, but most of them swung into the opposing column and the Conservatives passed by 88 to 48. This vote brought out the lone government defection in connection with the treaties, Armand Lavergne, Conservative, Montigny, Que., voted against the bill.

MANY PAIRED
There was a long list of pairs on all votes, but six members of the Gingham Group supported each treaty—Kennedy, Peace River; Speakman, Red Deer; Lucas, Camrose; Campbell, MacKenzie; Luchkovitch, Vegreville; and Carmichael, Kindersley.

Opposing every treaty were Miss Agnes MacPhail, Progressives, South; Earl Grey, Ont.; Henri Bourassa, Independent, Quebec; and J. S. Woodsworth, Labor, Winnipeg, North Centre. Eleven Liberals voted against the Rhodesian agreement. A. W. Neill, Independent, Comox-Alberni, voted against all but the Rhodesian treaty.

JERUSALEM HAS NO UNEMPLOYED

New York, Nov. 23.—Three Jewish leaders from Palestine, who arrived here on the liner Brenegaria yesterday, on their way to the convention of the American Mischel, organization in Buffalo, boasted their city was the one place in the world that had not one unemployed man.

One of them, Aran Bis-Nun, said the Jewish population in Jerusalem had grown from 50,000 in 1917 to 220,000 to-day. He added the present economic situation had resulted in a big increase in the migration of Jews from Palestine.

LIGHT BEAM IS TELEPHONE

Test in New York State Over Distance of Twenty-four Miles

Schenectady, N.Y., Nov. 23.—A group of scientists in Schenectady yesterday evening talked with another group at Lake Desolation, twenty-four miles away, over a light beam projected across the lower Adirondack Mountains.

It was the longest narrow-casting experiment on record. John Bellamy Taylor, who developed the method of transmitting sound over light waves and was at Lake Desolation, was interviewed by Heywood Brown, newspaper columnist, in Schenectady.

A searchlight projected its beam on a thirty-inch mirror, which was part of the receiving apparatus at Lake Desolation. To the scientists at the Adirondack lake the searchlight appeared as a distant, twinkling star.

WHEAT SALES BOARD URGED
Winnipeg, Nov. 23.—A united request for the federal government to establish a national marketing board to handle the 1932 wheat crop is a possibility to-day.

Many agriculturists throughout the prairies support the creation of a national board and with the wheat pools of the three provinces formally fall in line it is likely a western delegation will journey to Ottawa.

Already the federal government has such a request before it, made by prairie premiers in Ottawa early in September, and now western representatives may go east to add their plea.

Directors of the Alberta Wheat Pool and the membership at large of the Saskatchewan Pool urged the formation of such a board.

Heads of the Manitoba Pool will gather here next week, and it is expected the marketing board problem will occupy a prominent place on the agenda.

In the post-war years of 1919-20 a national wheat board operated in Canada, successfully handling millions of bushels of wheat at a cost of 1/2 cent a bushel.

OKLAHOMA SENDS OIL TO REGINA
Seminole, Okla., Nov. 23.—A trainload of forty cars of crude oil will leave here Friday for the Imperial Oil Company's plant at Regina, Sask.

The train will provide 120,000 working days for railway employees in Canada and the United States. The railroad men call it the "King George Special."

It is the first trainload of Seminole crude oil shipped to Canada in months. There used to be three weekly.

BARR COLONY'S TREK RECALLED
A large and appreciative audience greeted Bishop Lloyd, M.A., D.D., on his appearance before the Middleton British-Israel Guild in the Campbell Building of Monday evening.

The bishop was introduced by E. E. Richards and spoke on "The Great Trek of 1903." He told of his call to accompany 2,000 people as chaplain, to their destination in Saskatchewan, where they were to make their new homes and incidentally to establish the traditions and institutions of their race.

From the time of landing in St. John, N.B., the bishop found that he had also to assume the responsibility of administrator, which was no light task when the people found themselves in a trackless wilderness, with nothing but the grass under their feet and the sky over their heads and 200 miles away from any other settlement.

His testimony to the pluck of the colonists, their determination to make good in the face of great hardships, and the success which had crowned their efforts, brought applause.

Many humorous incidents narrated by the bishop provoked continuous merriment and laughter. In response to the general request of the audience Bishop Lloyd has consented to continue the subject next Monday evening in the same place at 8 o'clock.

Royal Oak
A very interesting missionary meeting of St. Michael's Anglican Young People's Association was held last Thursday, the details being arranged by the missionary convenor, Miss D. Young. The members left the parish hall on a "mystery drive," the unknown destination being the Good Hope Mission in Chinatown.

The visitors were welcomed by Rev. Clarence Lee, Chinese minister of the mission, who gave an address of China, its people and customs. The Chinese pupils entertained with songs, recitations and tricks and served cocoa and cake. The party then visited the charming little Chinese chapel.

On returning to the parish hall a Chinese dinner prepared by Mrs. Young and Mrs. Doyle, was served. Rice and chicken was the main dish. Biscuits and Chinese tea were also served and each person was supplied with chopsticks.

A general meeting has been called for this week to make final arrangements for the "Millennaires' Fair," to be held in Royal Oak Hall on Friday.

CHURCH EXPANSION
Chicago, Nov. 23.—(Associated Press)—The Roman Catholic Church in the United States was placed on record to-day as favoring no retrenchment other than that, absolutely necessary, in its expansion program for 1933.

Cardinals, archbishops and bishops of the church, gathered with prominent laymen at the Catholic Church Extension Society meeting and were informed the fund for extension work was only 10 per cent less than last year.

HUNDRED DIE IN BIG FLOODS

Crops Ruined in Remote Region South of Bogota, Colombia

Bogota, Colombia, Nov. 23.—Reports from Huila department in the upper Andean reaches of the Magdalena River valley to-day told of disastrous floods in which 100 persons were swept to their deaths by the torrents.

The dispatches from the remote region were brief, relating the bare details of death two and three days ago, and adding reports that many were homeless.

Crops, consisting mainly of corn, cacao and other staples common to mountainous equatorial regions, were reported ruined by the deluge.

The district is more than 100 miles south of Bogota.

IRISH FARMERS STATE POSITION

Dublin, Irish Free State, Nov. 22.—In a statement addressed to "Our people at home and, particularly, in the United States," the United Farmers' Protection Association, an organization supporting the De Valera government, said that Great Britain "has declared war" on the Irish farmers and "hopes to crush" them and the young Free State.

"She does not realize," the statement added, "the powers of a peasant state united in a national effort to rebuild and reorganize our own resources and defend our hard-won liberty against her new form of attack."

The farmers' association urged a separate currency for the Free State and prohibition of all British imports.

Refusal by the Free State Government to pay land annuities to the United Kingdom led to tariffs being set up by the National Government against Irish goods and the Free State retaliating with tariffs against United Kingdom goods.

MANUSCRIPT IS HELD BY THIEVES
New York, Nov. 23.—The theft of an original Sir Walter Scott manuscript, owned by J. P. Morgan, was disclosed yesterday.

The volume was one of three comprising Scott's own pen-written manuscript of "Guy Mannering." It had been on display in a locked glass case at Columbia University during October, while the centenary of Scott's death was observed. Loss of the volume was discovered October 24 by the librarian, but was kept secret in the hope the thief would return it.

New York detectives assigned to the case said the person who took the book had rivalled in skill the criminal in Paris who stole the priceless Mona Lisa from under the watchful eyes of guards at the Louvre. They expressed a theory the volume was being held for ransom.

NEW SMALL HENS FOR CITY YARDS
Chicago, Nov. 23.—Now that modern civilization has scaled down everything from the living-room furniture to the family pup, a new breed of chicken that lays good-sized eggs is large enough for the table, yet small enough for the city dweller's limited backyard has been developed.

Furthermore, this newcomer, the Wyandotte-bantam-easi, only about one-third as much as the ordinary-sized hen.

It is one of two new breeds accepted this year by the Chicago Poultry Exposition Association, the country's largest exhibit of chickens, turkeys, ducks, geese and rabbits. The twenty-fourth annual exhibition is now in progress.

ALBERTA HAS LARGE DEFICIT
Edmonton, Nov. 23.—A deficit of $5,151,000 in Alberta provincial finances for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1932, is shown in public accounts released yesterday by Hon. R. G. Reid, Provincial Treasurer. This compares with a deficit of $2,300,000 for the previous fiscal year, 1930-31.

Revenue for the year, which had been estimated at $18,441,457, actually reached $13,492,450, a shrinkage of nearly $5,000,000. Expenditures were estimated at $18,828,798, but were cut to $18,645,480.

Man Is Held In Ontario For Trial
Toronto, Nov. 23.—Inspector Charles Gurnett of the Criminal Investigation Department of the Ontario Provincial Police, arrives here to-day from Edmonton, bringing with him John Palzwick, arrested in the Alberta city in connection with the robbery of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch at Aurora, near here, last December.

Palzwick is charged, with Ernest Bennett, alias Taylor, a former member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and Joseph Malcovitch, entered the bank with guns and stole between $1,200 and $1,500. Bennett and Malcovitch were sentenced to thirteen years with lashes for the holdup.

J. RODGER OF MONTREAL DIES
Montreal, Nov. 23.—(Canadian Press)—James Rodger, seventy-nine, president of Gault Brothers, a wholesale dry-goods firm with Vancouver and Winnipeg connections, died here yesterday, aged seventy-nine.

ADVISES AGAINST SHAVING
Oklahoma City, Nov. 23.—(Associated Press)—Governor Alfalfa Bill Murray, with a twinkle in his blue eyes, attributed his keen sight to his "handlebar" moustache. "If you shave your moustache," he said to-day, "it weakens your eyes."

LYRE BIRD RECORDS
Sydney, Australia, Nov. 23.—(Associated Press)—The lyre bird, last seen made his phonographic debut. After years of trying, two naturalists have caught the song of Australia's inimitable mocking bird on a phonograph record. The record also has registered the songster's mimicry of other birds as well as the sounds of barking dogs and cackling hens.

HAS HITLER TURNED THE TABLES ON VON HINDENBURG?

After three days of consideration, Adolf Hitler has declined President von Hindenburg's invitation to form a cabinet and a programme of action to meet Germany's domestic crisis with the statement that the formation of a government on a Parliamentary basis was both impossible and undesirable. In his opinion the cabinet crisis can be solved only with a cabinet directly responsible to the President. In fact Hitler told the President that such an administration should be authorized if necessary to govern without Parliament; and he did not hesitate to add that he was ready to head such a government and place his movement at the disposal of the chief executive for this purpose. Influential supporters of Hitler believe that Von Hindenburg is becoming less hostile to the Nazi leader; at any rate they suggest that all the doors had been left open for further negotiation.

One of the provisions contained in the President's invitation to Hitler to try his hand at cabinet making was that he would be permitted to assume the office of Chancellor only if he could present a programme to the Reichstag which would be backed by a majority, or almost a majority, of the new House. Von Hindenburg must have known, of course, that he was presenting the Nazi leader with an impossible task. Opposed to Hitler are all the moderate elements of the Reichstag, with 211 votes, and 100 Communists, while the Nationalists, composed chiefly of the Junker party, with fifty-one seats, could hardly be expected to support Hitler in view of his open hostility to them ever since government by presidential decree has been in effect.

The suggestion of the Nazi chieftain as a solution for the cabinet crisis would seem to place the President in a somewhat anomalous position. If he refuses the proposal that Hitler be permitted to form a ministry and govern without Parliament, Hitler will probably remind Von Hindenburg that this had been the system in vogue for some time before the recent elections, but with the important fact to be borne in mind that Chancellor von Papen merely represented a small minority party chiefly composed of militarists and monarchists, while he, Hitler, commanded a following of 230 members in a Reichstag of 608 members, the largest single group by a considerable margin. The Nazis in the new Reichstag have 195 members in a Reichstag of 582 members—still the largest group. So if President von Hindenburg framed his terms to the Nazi leader in order to insure their rejection—a course typical of Junkerdom—Hitler has turned the tables. It will be interesting to note the reaction.

Whether a dictatorship of the Von Papen-Von Schleicher type would be any better or any worse than a Nazi dictatorship is highly problematical. Ever since the elections of 1930, when the Hitlerites increased their representation in the Reichstag from twelve to 107, Hitler has been the stormy petrel of German politics. Many clashes between his followers and Communists have been responsible for a heavy toll of deaths and serious injuries. While there always has been the danger of really serious internal strife, the present position in which the Nazi leader finds himself naturally imparts to the German domestic situation a much wider significance in the international sense. Hitler's National-Socialism is an intense Nationalism for Germany, and he has borrowed much of his material from the man who rules Italy; but there is no king or emperor on Hitler's horizon to be subdued either by force or by the polite process of eclipse which Mussolini has employed.

Hitler has made no secret of the fact that as far as he and his party are concerned the Treaty of Versailles already has been consigned to the waste-paper basket; but that if any fragments should remain when he has Germany's political reins in his hand he will make short work of them. On several occasions he has been outspoken in his references to France, which, boiled down to simple terms, means that he believes it is useless for Germany to consider she has anything in common with her ancient enemy upon which lasting friendship could be established. He has implied in the exposition of this view that Germany should be at liberty to go her own way and restore the power and prestige she enjoyed before the Great War. For the most part, official France has regarded much of this talk as the fulminations of a young and ambitious idealist. But with Hitler as the head of a cabinet, governing with or without a Parliament, the situation would be entirely different.

Whether Hitler's loss of thirty-five seats at the recent elections implies that his movement is on the wane remains to be seen. It had grown to an enormous strength, which it drew mainly from the young people. For more than two years the Nazi leader has carried his gospel to the young men and women who were infants while the war was raging, and he has described to them how they and their children would have to pay for that war. But the agreement reached at Lausanne weakened this prop of his platform as far as it concerned the outside world. This line of argument will have to be confined now to the critical domestic condition of his own country, which, of course, also is a legacy of the war.

Perhaps one of the most drastic proposals which early this year Hitler declared he would put into operation has, to do with the Jews. Here are some measures he would adopt if he had the opportunity:

1. The Jews are to be deprived of their citizenship and receive the status of aliens.
2. No Jew will be permitted to hold a government or municipal post.
3. Since the state must make its primary concern the livelihood of its citizens, should there be insufficient food, the Jews will be expelled.
4. All Jews who entered Germany after 1914 are to be expelled at once (about 100,000).
5. Jews to be prohibited from editing or collaborating on newspapers.
6. The freedom of Christian religions is to be safeguarded, but the Jewish religion is to be combatted on the ground that it is materialistic.
7. All Jewish land holdings and town properties are to be confiscated.

When this anti-semitic outburst first appeared, The Manchester Guardian asked whether "a whole nation, one of the greatest and most civilized in the world, is to be handed over to the brute, the blackguard, and the chaflatan?" No one can tell. This comment preceded the two elections in which Hitler's bid for the presidency was foiled. If he is still of the same mind, and if he should be allowed to assume a position in which his authority would prevail, it merely adds to the oft-repeated statement that civil war in Germany is an ever-present danger.

RAILWAY STATISTICS SHOWN AT A GLANCE

The current issue of the Bank of Nova Scotia's Monthly Review contains some interesting tables showing how the two railway systems of Canada have fared from 1928 to 1931 inclusive. The information set forth has been obtained from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and from the annual reports of the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National. Here are the tables:

Table 1—Tons of Freight Carried One Mile Per Mile of Line
	C.N.R.	C.P.R.
1928	946,546	1,263,539
1929	781,878	1,000,129
1930	658,618	791,024
1931	575,664	679,722
Decline, 1928-1931	39.2	46.2

Table 2—Operating Revenue: Freight
	C.N.R.	C.P.R.
1928	$190,449,242	$160,344,854
1929	176,253,364	151,600,970
1930	153,271,137	126,920,672
1931	124,912,521	106,493,433
Decline, 1928-1931	34.4	39.5

Table 3—Passengers Carried One Mile Per Mile of Line
	C.N.R.	C.P.R.
1928	67,598	92,266
1929	61,431	82,426
1930	51,107	68,966
1931	35,919	45,373
Decline, 1928-1931	46.9	50.8

Table 4—Operating Revenue: Passenger
	C.N.R.	C.P.R.
1928	$36,078,642	$35,334,447
1929	34,237,892	34,096,255
1930	29,661,609	27,974,901
1931	20,810,308	19,564,780
Decline, 1928-1931	42.3	44.7

Revenue freight and passenger only have been included in the above calculations. It will be noted, incidentally, that passenger traffic, in the case of both railways, appears to have suffered more severely than freight traffic. Freight as well as passenger traffic, however, will continue to decline until our import and export trade is revived.

MORE FURY WORKED UP FOR THE ANCIENT GRUDGE

An organization known as the United Farmers Protection Association in the Irish Free State has issued a statement addressed to "our people at home and particularly in the United States," in which it says that Great Britain has "declared war" on the Irish farmers and "hopes to crush" them and the young Free State.

The "war" referred to is the tariff war in which both countries are engaged as a result of the Free State's discontinuance of the payment of the land annuities to Great Britain. But the United Farmers Protection Association is fully aware of the fact that Mr. de Valera started the trouble when he repudiated the agreement entered into by his predecessor in office and who faithfully lived up to it until his defeat in the last general elections.

The statement to which we have referred may be read in conjunction with a dispatch from Dublin the other day which reported that the Mullingar branch of the West Meath Farmers had sent out a call to twenty-six counties for a march on the Free State capital of 100,000 farmers to convince Mr. de Valera of the distress which his policy toward Great Britain had brought to them and their wives and children.

Britain for years has been the chief market for the produce of Irish farms. It has now been virtually closed by a prohibitive tariff wall over which sales of agricultural products can be made only at ruinous prices. But Mr. de Valera is happy now he sees his ancient grudge working with all its fury. But he had better look out for those who are feeling it where it really hurts.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

THREE-QUARTER MARK
The Baltimore Sun

If there is a disposition to malice in the offices of The Atlantic Monthly, it must be a durable disposition upon the magazine's seventy-fifth anniversary to note that many periodicals, which have made wise cracks about young ladies in Pullman cars protecting themselves from unwelcome advances by wearing woollen stockings and carrying The Atlantic, are now detested. For years The Atlantic has been spoofed for its dignity and aloofness, and yet, while others of the "class publications" have just kept ahead of the sheriff by changes in size, format and material, The Atlantic has stuck to its guns and multiplied its circulation with no more concession to the tabloid age than a far from revolutionary brightening of the cover.

Loose Ends

We are knifed in the back—and by one of our own countrymen—we are grossly misunderstood by the barbarians across the water—a Victorian is polluted by the Great City—and life isn't a bowl of cherries.

By H. B. W.

STAB IN THE BACK.

MY GOOD friend Jim Butterfield, of the Province, has undertaken to put Victoria in its place. Heaven forbid that I should try in return to put Vancouver in its place. Heaven forbid, indeed, that we should pay heed to any manifestation of Vancouver's unhappy inferiority complex. But in this case it seems that Victorian is the cause of our humiliation and such treachery, such a stab in the back cannot fail to cause pain in the Victorian breast, which may sound curious anatomically speaking, but is none the less painful for that. Yes, according to Mr. Butterfield, a person from Victoria, he calls her a lady, but I deny that; moved to Vancouver recently and told her friends that she had just "escaped" from this city. And when asked if she had lived in Victoria she made this vulgar reply: "My dear, one doesn't live in Victoria; one makes one's home there."

WELL, I AM quite prepared to believe that such a person never lived in Victoria. I am quite prepared to believe that she never lived in Victoria, but such a person will never live there. She will never live anywhere. She will only rush about and play bridge and make a clacking sound with her tongue. Yes, she will like Vancouver. For in Vancouver they don't live. They haven't time. They have been too busy becoming Vancouver to do anything else. They have been so occupied in the job of growing great that they have never got around to the job of life yet. When they do, they will find it quite interesting, if they have not exhausted all their vital faculties by that time in the childish pursuit of gold and glitter. Most likely, when they reach that stage of wisdom, they will come over here to find out what life is about.

THEY SWARM

MEANWHILE VANCOUVER merely rushes about making a clacking sound with its tongue. A day in Vancouver exhausts me that I have to rest up for a week here before I regain my sanity. I count it a day dropped completely from my life. Over in Vancouver they swarm. They swarm through Stanley Park in automobiles, they swarm across the new Burrard Street Bridge where you have to be a trained navigator to understand the system of signal lights, and if your calculations are out a degree or two you go on the rocks. They swarm into theatres—you can never park within a mile of them—they swarm into restaurants—they actually boast, mark you, that they have more restaurants per capita than any other city in the world, instead of hiding their shame—they swarm into dinky little lunch rooms, where the tables are no bigger than two-bit pieces, where you sit cheek by jowl with some fat millionaire or a pretty starlet (which isn't so bad) and you can't tell whether you are eating your toasted cheese sandwich or hot dog (everybody has dyspepsia in Vancouver) or your neighbor's. Their houses are built on the same plan—hundreds of miles of them, springing up among the surviving stumps of the primeval forest, two feet six inches between each house, but this is no inconvenience, since no one lives in them. They are merely sleeping-pieces. Besides, the same idea—that idea being Vancouver—you don't need privacy. You have no secrets from your neighbor and he has none from you. You have nothing to hide, nothing whatever, not a whisper of a notion on anything. You are all part of the swarm. So you just keep on swarming or you will be trampled to death or run over by the automobiles which go down Granville Street Hill at sixty miles per hour. You don't live. You keep running away from life.

IT IS ALL very jolly, it is all very neighborly, it is all very young and gay and innocent. Indeed, Vancouver's youth and innocence and boyish illusions would be an inspiration to anyone if he could only view them from a distance, and didn't have to swarm with the honey-gatherers. It is all very inspiring, the surge of new houses through the primeval forest, a few grain elevators bobbing up at every turn, another bridge across the Second Narrows, a hundred new electric signs every night, a score of new restaurants opening every morning, but it is not life. Vancouver is not old enough to know that job, and there is a use telling her, but at least she doesn't need to make remarks about us who do know. Let Vancouver go on swarming, let her continue to grow great, but leave the more solid business of living to us who know how.

EX-VICTORIAN

ON THE same page in The Province as Mr. Butterfield's knife-in-the-back is an article of much deeper philosophic content by one P.C.R. You would expect something deeper; and more philosophic from P.C.R. who was raised, journalistically speaking, in Victoria, who has carried something of the calm and culture of this city into the lawless market-place of Vancouver, and tried desperately to retain some of his old sanity. He hasn't retained much. He swarms with the rest of them. He lives in restaurants, theatres and automobiles. He is pretty badly demoralized, is old P.C.R., and even when he comes back to Victoria for a weekend he can't sit still for five minutes. But as his lament shows, something of the old fire still burns within him, though dimly. It makes him lament the spirit of these times, in brilliant prose which I shall not attempt to paraphrase, but he has made a terrible mistake, as we shall see later.

MR. P.C.R.'s lamentation is built cunningly around that silly song of Mr. Vallee's, "Life Is Just a Bowl of Cherries." That says Mr. P.C.R. is the proper slogan of this era, senseless, idiotic, meaningless, the unhappy chatter of a vacant mind and the echo of it is a vacant despair. "It is the mark," says Mr. P.C.R., of these times of ours, this bewildered generation that says, "O, yeah!" and "You're telling me!" that likes to think it is cynical and only succeeds in being unhappy. This is the age that has lost the old beliefs and found nothing to take their place. This is the age which does not know what to believe and takes refuge in the vast inside, and the voice of its lamentation is "Life Is Just a Bowl of Cherries." It was far better when we sang "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," because then at least, though we did not know, we believed we were on the way to somewhere. It was not so bad when we sang, "Yes, We Have No Bananas," because then at least we had not forgotten how to smile. But this is the age which believes that nothing can be true, except what it can't understand. This is the age of the fourth dimension, which twelve men understand. This is the age of poverty because we've got too much of everything, which nobody understands.

WELL, SAYS Mr. P.C.R., (who already has written most of this column for me), "even if I am the last man left alive to say it, I don't believe a word of it. I don't believe in the new theory of Relativity—and I don't believe in the new theory of economics. I don't believe in what I can't understand—and especially I don't believe in what nobody can understand. I am going to have a Rum Ration (noble thought). I don't know what life is, but I do know it isn't anything so damned silly as just a bowl of cherries."

NO CHERRIES HERE

AH, THAT makes me proud. That is the voice of sanity crying in the wilderness of Vancouver's skyscrapers. And mark you, it is a Victorian voice, trained here on our Broad Street. It is none the less worthy because it is grossly mistaken. Yes, Mr. P.C.R. is mistaken in his lamentation because he thinks that life everywhere is like life in Vancouver. He thinks everywhere that life is called a bowl of cherries. Well, it isn't called a bowl of cherries here. There is no fourth dimension here, either, no new theory of economics, no vast inside, no vacant minds and vacant despair, but, in case Mr. P.C.R. has forgotten it, there are Rum Rations as of old time. Mr. Vallee has repented of his youth. He has looked about the world, he has examined our current life, which is supposed to be a bowl of cherries, and now he is crying with a sadder, wiser croon: "Say it isn't so. I should not like to say he was crooning about Vancouver, but certainly he wasn't crooning about Victoria. Life here isn't a bowl of cherries. It is Life. And how!"

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES

November 23, 1907

(From The Times Files)

Weather Forecast—Victoria and vicinity—Strong winds or gales from the east and south, unsettled with rain.

The British Columbia Electric Railway Company is now looking to Jordan River for its future supply of power. The water has already been staked and a man is being sent out there to-day to find out exactly what water goes down the river this winter. Application will be made for a record and if everything proves satisfactory the matter will be laid before the board of directors in London for their approval.

Mrs. P. G. Cudlip (nee Cullin) will hold her post-nuptial reception on Wednesday and Thursday, November 27 and 28, at 67, Michigan Street.

Some members of the cast for the entertainment, "The House That Jack Built," to be given Friday and Saturday in aid of the Jubilee Hospital fund, has been arranged. The names of those who will take part are as follows: Mother Goose, Mrs. J. Harvey; Queen of Hearts, Miss Bullin; Jack Goose, Miss Glen Switzer; King Cole, Mrs. J. K. Kline; Ace of Hearts, Baul Prior; Maid of Moon, Mrs. Lamont; Page to King, Gladys Watson; Page to Queen, Lizzie Brynjolfsson; Bow Bear, Dennis Pennock; Pipe Beaver, Leroy Wagler; Three Fiddlers, Lester Jones; George Pauline and Victor Pauline.

On Thursday evening next the first concert to be given by the Victoria Musical Society, when "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast" by Coleridge-Taylor, and "Banner of St. George" by Elgar, will be presented. The society is fortunate indeed to have as conductor Gideon Hicks.

ST. JOHN'S BOYS
HOSTS TO GIRLS

The Guild Room of St. John's Church was crowded to capacity Monday evening at the A.Y.P.A. meeting. The matter of the Sunshine Inn entertainment to be given soon was brought to the attention of the young people. Reports on the young people's classes held recently in the Memorial Hall were given by those who attended the classes.

Monday being the night set for the boys to entertain the girls, Jack Laver, representing the boys, started the fun by getting a boxing match under way which proved very amusing. The next game, "A Motor Romance," tested the members' knowledge of cars and the last game, "Going Out West," created much laughter. To end this enjoyable evening, the boys served excellent refreshments. Before adjourning, the members were reminded of the novelty entertainment to be presented in the Sunday school-room, Mason Street, this evening.

"I DON'T

Tooth Paste I take the advice of those who do"

So runs a paragraph in a letter from a charming woman who is enthusiastic about Listerine Tooth Paste. We pass it on for what it is worth.

Do you know that Listerine Tooth Paste contains marvelous new cleansing and polishing agents that remove film faster, and give teeth a sparkle and cleanliness that ordinary dentifrices cannot accomplish?

These ingredients show unusual ability to get rid of unsightly odor-producing tobacco stains on teeth. Discolorations and tartar left by food disappear, of course, as if by magic.

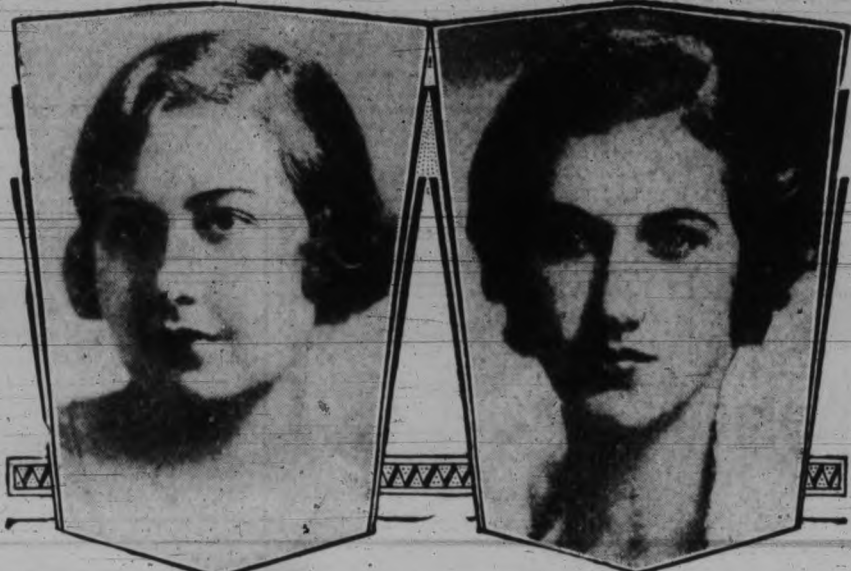

If you are not now using Listerine Tooth Paste, we urge you to give it a trial. See how quickly and how thoroughly it performs its work.

Here's the Way to Treat
Those Miserable Colds
So Prevalent Here Now

WITH scattered cases of 'flu breaking out in this locality, don't take chances with colds NOW—it's too dangerous! Unless checked quickly, colds tend to pull down the body resistance and may pave the way for an attack of 'flu with all its serious complications.

1 DON'T WAIT FOR A COLD TO DEVELOP: At the first sign of stuffiness or irritation in the nose or throat, sniff some Vicks VapoRub up the nose. Repeat as needed during the day. This will often check a cold at the start.

2 IF A COLD HAS DEVELOPED, DON'T NEGLECT IT: At bed-time rub the throat and chest vigorously with Vicks, spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. If the head is clogged with mucus or there is much coughing, melt a spoonful of Vicks in boiling water and inhale the steaming medicated vapors.

(If possible, rest in bed until the cold is broken. This helps to maintain body resistance and to throw off the cold more quickly.)

Don't Take Chances With Colds Now!

Lutheran W.M.S.
Plan Celebration
Of Silver Jubilee

London, Nov. 22.—The twenty-fourth convention of the Women's Missionary Society of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Canada recently held showed that a silver jubilee fund of $2,500 will be completed during the coming year and a special celebration will be held in Waterloo at the next convention.

In co-operation with thirty other societies of the general body the Canadian women support sixty-two single women missionaries in five different foreign fields. The general body consists of 41,679 members and during the last biennial contributed $758,139. A demonstration of unusual significance was the recent Young Women's Congress in Baltimore, where 1,117 Lutheran girls gathered for missionary inspiration. Lutheran young women are not losing their interest in missions. In spite of the prevailing depression in the United States and in Canada, the Lutheran Missionary Society has not curtailed its work, has cleared away all indebtedness, and has balanced its budget. The Canadian special is the support of the college and seminary at Waterloo, the leading Lutheran institution in Canada.

The historic associations of the Williamsburg and St. Lawrence parishes lent color to the convention. Lutheran United Empire Loyalists established their church in this part of Canada in 1784 and number among their great leaders such patriarchs as Rev. Samuel Schwerdtfeger and Rev. Herman Cayunga.

Enjoy Treasure Hunt—The Knox Presbyterian Young People's Society held their usual weekly meeting in the church Monday evening. The president, Robert Foulis, opened the meeting with the pledge and motto. The devotion period was taken by James Gibbs. During the business meeting plans were made for the society to have their monthly song-service at the church next Sunday evening at 7:15 o'clock. On December 3 the Canadian Girls in Training group of the church will repeat by special request a play entitled "Missionary Arithmetic," at the usual D.P.S. meeting. After the business meeting adjourned, partners were drawn and everyone present enjoyed a very interesting treasure hunt, and prizes were presented to Mrs. Reg. Scoble and Harvey Patterson, who had the largest number of specified treasures. The social committee had steam-pork and beans ready which the members very much enjoyed after their long hunt. Next Monday evening the president, R. Foulis, will give a short talk on the Religious Educational Council school he attended, where he studied Young People's Work.

Chinatown of San Francisco Described

Rev. M. S. Richardson gave an interesting address on Chinatown in San Francisco and his impressions of that district at the monthly meeting of the Women's Mission Department of First Baptist Church, held in the women's parlor on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Angus Galbraith, the newly-elected president, was in the chair. Mrs. A. E. Taylor led the devotional exercises. Mrs. Richardson read the financial statement, and Mrs. Oliver Brown the secretary's report. A letter was received from the Presbyterian, congratulating Mrs. Brown on the splendid work she was doing among the Hindus in Victoria. In answer to a request made, a bed, mattress and blankets were donated for

CHOIR OF AGED FOLKS DISBAND

Seventy-one Average Age of English Choir Which Holds Farewell Recital

A choir whose members averaged the age of seventy-one years gave its final performance recently, when the Hawke's Bay English People's choir gave its farewell concert at Fenech's, Durham, England.

Their conductor, Joseph Wolfe, uses the stump of an old umbrella as his baton, and although he is seventy-seven years of age, he sings with the joyousness of youth, says a correspondent in The Daily Mail.

The conductor said regretfully that the six men and fifteen women members of the choir had come to a decision to wind up affairs.

"Unfortunately," he explained, "there are many gaps in the party now, as the result of death, and we are unable to get new members. In recent years we have raised nearly $500 for charity, and apart from travelling expenses we have never had a halfpenny, so we feel that we have done well."

WOMAN SOLOIST SEVENTY

"The average age of the members of the choir works out at seventy-one. The oldest member is eighty-one. The men members of the choir are all retired miners. Mrs. Surtees, who is seventy years of age, is one of the soloists."

"It all began out of our little village sing-songs, and we have traveled all over the county by invitation. Miss Isabel MacDonald attended one of our practices and joined in the singing a short time ago."

"Mel Davies, our oldest member, comes from Hartlepool, and is a wonderful tenor. Fiddler Billy Morris is really great. He excels alike with modern songs and the old melodies. My wife is also in the choir. She is seventy. I can tell you that all our members are looking forward to the 'do,' which we are holding after the last concert."

W.B.A. BAZAAR ATTRACTS MANY

The Women's Benevolent Association held a most successful bazaar on Monday afternoon in the K. of C. Hall. Mrs. McQueen Todd, the president, and Miss Annie Reid, the convener, welcoming the many guests, including Alderman James Adam, who performed the opening ceremony. The stalls were particularly attractive, the color scheme being red and white, the colors of the order. The Pioneers' stall and that of the Girls' Club were done in mauve and in blue and gold respectively.

Afternoon tea and supper were well attended, and were served under the convener'ship of Mrs. A. Ricketts, Mrs. K. Herring, Mrs. D. Gilliat, Mrs. D. Burnett, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. J. Brown, and Mrs. K. Laird had charge of the fancywork; the candy was sold by Mrs. Malcolm and Mrs. Davis; the Pioneers' Club stall was in charge of Mrs. Deeser; the Girls' Club, Miss Mabel Stephens; home cooking, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. McNeill; house-houses, Mrs. Edmonds and Mrs. Walker, and the pumpkin competition, which caused considerable interest, was won by Mrs. man Hawkins.

Mrs. Moraes was convener of the card games, the winners being as follows: Bridge, Mrs. Addison and Mrs. Graham; whist, Mrs. Herring, Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Malcolm; Dancing by Miss Eileen Chislett, a pupil of the Novikoff School of Dancing, was much enjoyed, and solos by Mrs. M. Bertucci and Miss E. Dawson were enthusiastically enjoyed.

Metropolitan W.M.S. Hear Dr. Fraser

The Metropolitan W.M.S. held their monthly meeting on Monday afternoon with Mrs. W. H. Whiteley in the chair. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. H. Benson, followed by prayer by Mrs. A. Field. Mrs. W. L. Smith reported that seventy-four calls had been made on the sick and seven on strangers. Mrs. A. Read gave a short talk on "Christianity—Stewardship." Mrs. H. Adams, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. A. S. Locke, sang with feeling "O Loving Father" and "My Task." Mrs. Adams received a pleasant surprise when she was presented with a life membership in the society by Mrs. W. J. Pendray.

Mrs. W. E. Stannard introduced the guest speaker of the afternoon, Rev. Dr. Simon Fraser, who has spent many years as a missionary in Trinidad. Dr. Fraser stressed the value of such organizations as the W.M.S. Women had always played an important part in missionary work. Through their unaided efforts valuable hospital and redemption work had been carried on. He appealed to them to continue the good work. Mrs. Pendray closed with prayer.

BIRTH CONTROL MORAL LEPROSY

Says U.S. Council of Catholic Men; Want Information Banned

Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Nov. 23.—Assailing birth control as "moral leprosy," the National Council of Catholic Men today adopted a resolution calling for support of existing laws banning dissemination of information on the subject.

"Advocates of this pernicious immorality never cease," the resolution said, "to endeavor to win converts to their cause and the period of distress now passing has provided willing listeners to the siren call for the limitation of the family on economic grounds, although opposed to the unchangeable laws of God and the welfare of human society."

Recognizing the stage and screen as having a proper place in the educational and cultural life of the nation, the council urged determined opposition to productions "subversive to morals and destructive of Christian principles."

PICTURE SAVED LIFE OF BOY

Portrait by Robin Watt, Exhibited Here, Has Touching History

A touching human interest story lies behind one of the portraits which Robin Watt, native son of Victoria and internationally known artist, is showing in his exhibition which is open to the public from Thursday afternoon of this week until Wednesday, November 30, in his studio in the Central Building.

"Bryan," the subject of the portrait, was a patient in the Chasley Hospital for Cripples in England and after nine years in the institution was given up by the doctors. Mr. Watt, visiting the hospital one day, was struck by the dying boy's wistful face with its great dark eyes and asked permission to paint the boy's portrait as he lay propped up among his pillows. To quote Mr. Watt's own words: "It was with the boy only two mornings but from the first he seemed to me to be a native son but whose ability and technique place him in the forefront of the young artists of today."

The picture was hung in the Army Officers' Art Society's exhibition in London and after its appearance there Mr. Watt received a poignant letter from the boy's mother, expressing her gratitude to the artist for his instrumentality in imbuing the boy with the will to live.

VIRILE TREATMENT

In his present exhibition Mr. Watt is showing about thirteen oils, a dozen pastels, eight charcoals and twelve sanguines, all characterized by a freshness and virility of treatment which is remarkable. His draughtsmanship is notable for its boldness and his sense of color values satisfying. He is happy in his choice of backgrounds, too, as for instance, in the striking oil painting of an eastern actress, the warm, velvety texture and olive tone of her skin and the shimmering folds of her gown gaining in richness from the blue-green of the background, in which two fantastic puppets dangle, subtly suggestive of the mummy's art.

Particularly vigorous in its treatment and composition is the portrait of Dr. Georgine Ludden of Victoria, one of the finest examples of his work and which shows the artist's gift for interpreting character, life and animation on the canvas.

While a follower of the orthodox school, Mr. Watt builds on a foundation of sound technique and a contemporary freshness of treatment and a vigor which is arresting

CHARMING CHILD STUDIES

Other well-known subjects of his oils include his brother, Sholto, and Miss Dillys Bennett, formerly of this city. His portrait of a Canadian Chinese girl is also an effective bit of work, cleverly suggesting the Occidental influence on the Oriental.

In the medium of pastel Mr. Watt is equally at home. Children are a favorite subject in this medium and he is showing a number of charming studies, some of the little subjects including Peter Hunt, Moreen Yates, Cicely Gibbs, while among those in the medium of sanguine are David Ker, Penelope Jane Hargrave and Elizabeth and Desmond Holmes.

Victoria has from time to time welcomed well-known visiting artists and their work. Its enable him to spend a native son but whose ability and technique place him in the forefront of the young artists of today.

Your Baby and Mine

KNOWLEDGE PREPARES A MOTHER FOR WISE MANAGEMENT

It must be accepted as a fact that what a mother does is far more important in influencing a child than what she says. This may seem a simple enough doctrine to follow, but we cannot eliminate a mother's emotions in dealing with a child and it is her unrestrained, emotional displays which affect the child so profoundly and really aggravate his misbehavior.

Since the mother cannot entirely divorce herself of emotions, what shall she do? One answer is to learn beforehand what kind of behavior she may expect of her child at certain ages. By this preparation she has an opportunity to think how she shall control her behavior problems arise to confront her.

KNOW WHAT TO EXPECT

Preparation for such emergencies means that a mother must know her child. How many mothers even today are appalled when they find their small children, babes of eighteen months and two years, defying them? If a mother knows that children of this age are given to just such behavior, she will know how to conduct herself in the face of it. If she does not know that children of this age are given to what is called "negative" behavior, which is the universal tendency to say, "No, I won't," then she is almost certain to let her natural annoyance, her feeling of helplessness in the face of this stubborn mite, flare up into an emotional storm which fires the child to future exhibitions of the same kind.

THROWING DISHES

Here is the mother of an eleven-month-old baby who wants to know what she shall do when her baby throws his spoon and feeding bowl on the floor after he is through eating? Shall she slap his hand?

Her query is intelligent preparation for conduct that can be expected of the child who is learning to eat, and also discovering what fun it is to throw things. She may provide unbreakable dishes so that if he does experiment with this type of throwing, the dish will not break. Any mother would be less annoyed by the throwing if no casualties resulted.

SAVING THE CHINA

She may notice when baby is ready to stop eating and remove the dishes from his vicinity. She may put the child down from the table the moment he begins to play. The hungry child does not play, but eats until he is satisfied. Then he looks around for something to do to, while away the tedious of the mealtime. That is a good time to move the dishes out of reach.

And it is important to always give the child something harmless to throw. Throwing is part of his muscular yearnings which needs satisfaction. Balls, and soft bags full of paper or excelsior should be provided him. He should understand that you do not mind his throwing but all things are not throwable. The child sees no example of dish throwing, I hope, so this lesson is one we expect him to learn. He will learn if the mother wisely harnesses her own emotions during the learning process.

Love Unlocks The Door

By ANNIE S. SWAN

CHAPTER XXXII

Horne was conscious of a distinct curiosity as he opened the door of what usually, it seemed to him, midway between the fireplace and the window, looking anxiously towards the door.

She was quite young, dressed with extreme simplicity and care. Her face was a little pale, and his quick eye detected signs of nervousness in the tremor of the lids above the big, child-like eyes.

"Good morning, madam," he said in his kindest manner. "Please sit down and tell me what I can do for you."

She did not speak for a moment, but continued to look at him as if seeking to discover what kind of treatment she was likely to receive at his hands.

"You do not know me, sir? she said, with a little catch in her voice."

"No, I have not to my knowledge seen you before."

"My name was Morrison," she answered clearly, "but I am your son Gilbert's wife."

Horne staggered back a step. He was not surprised at the mention of Gilbert's name, but the quiet assertion, so convincingly made, put another aspect upon affairs. If it were true, then Gilbert was a greater scoundrel than he had thought. But Horne did not believe it to be true, and in his eyes a vast pity lay.

"Won't you sit down?" he said gently. "And we will go into this thing. It is a surprise to me certainly in one way. In another, nothing concerning my son Gilbert could surprise me. He has drifted completely away from me."

She opened the little velvet bag that was suspended at her waist and took out an envelope.

"I got this letter yesterday morning. I thought about it all day, and now I have come to show it to you."

Horne took the letter from her hand a little reluctantly.

"You wish me to read it?"

"Yes, I brought it for the purpose."

He drew it from its cover, and quickly ran his eye over these lines:

"Off Queensland, 23rd April. "Dear Lily—When you get this you will understand probably what has happened. I've cleared out. For a while things have been pretty intolerable at home and I'm in a bit of a crisis. Probably when you get this you may know that something happened the last night I saw you. After I got back to Cranford I met that sneaky Gerard, saying out for me, and I gave him what for."

"I don't know whether I did for him or not, at any rate, he's the sort of chap that would make a fine row about a small matter. It would not serve his own ends, which is to feather his nest out of the governor. I've never known him to be as soft as he has been about this outsider. He was never so easy with his own sons. But I needn't expatiate on that. I don't know my ultimate destination. I am sorry for you, my poor Lily. I am the other thing, my dear, a ghostly mistake, or have made, of course, the marriage business was all a hoax. I thought you would have seen through it long ago. I own up that I've behaved like a scoundrel to you, but it's a human weakness that has been going on ever since the world began. I don't suppose we'll ever meet again. You'd better try and go back home. I send you all I possess in the world at the present moment—2 hundred pounds. If you should think you can't go back to your own people—though, honestly, dear, it's the very best thing you could do, especially when that sort of yours is such a good sort—you could ask my father to do something for you. He won't refuse, because he's always generous to outsiders, and because he'll never have to do any more for me. If it could have been managed, I would have taken you, but I thought it out, and concluded that it would be quite disastrous."

"Try and forget me, Lily. I'm a wrong 'un, and always had a twist in me somewhere, I suppose. Thank you, my dear, for the goodness you put into my life for a while, and try not to think too hardly of me—Yours devotedly,

"GILBERT HORNE."

As Horne read his face grew white and then red with the tempest in his soul. That was his own flesh and blood should write such a cowardly letter to the woman he had betrayed filled him with amazement and a fury of indignation. He would have thrown it in the fire, but she reached out her hand in time to save it.

"It's mine," he said quickly. "You're very angry. I can see angrier even than I was when I got it."

"Sit down," he said quickly, "and tell me how in heaven's name you ever came to take up with him. Remember, I am all in the dark. Who wrote you before this happened? Who are your people? Are they in Edinburgh?"

"Yes, my father's name is Morrison—Edward Morrison. He's a teacher in a school out at Merchiston; perhaps you know it—Laurie's Institution."

"I know the school, of course, and the headmaster, Smeaton. Where did you meet my son first?"

"Lily, faintly colored, and looked down. "We met first on Blackford Hill. My hat blew away in the wind one day I was there, and he picked it up for me. We began to talk, and so it went on."

"My son promised you marriage, I suppose. Are you still in your father's house?"

"No, I am in rooms at Portobello. I've been there since before Christmas."

"A great light dawned on Horne's mind. There was the full explanation of Gilbert's absence from home, his late nights, his lack of lover-like attendance in that quarter where they had a right to expect it."

Lily's color pined in her cheek, and involuntarily she drew herself up. "Sir, I am your son's wife," she said, simply.

He shook his head pityingly. "He did not seem to think it when he wrote that letter. It is not the kind of a letter a man would write to the woman he believes to be his wife."

She undid the bosom of her dress, and drew out another envelope, from which she produced a blue paper and offered it to him.

"That's my marriage lines. I got them at the time. He thought they were false; he was wrong, for I've had the very best advice, and the lawyer tells me I'm his wife, according to what they call Scots law."

"Did you go to a registry office, or what?"

"No, we were married in a house. I don't know where the house is, nor the people, but they witnessed it, and some time ago, when I thought he had run, he added, with a quiet pathos which stung Horne again, "I consulted a lawyer, and he told me that this document is valid. That was the words he used. I can give you his name, if you like—Mr. Andrew Halliburton, 35 York Place."

Horne raised his eyebrows at the name, and then, after a moment's reflection, he handed it back to her. "We'll have advice upon it, the very best advice that can be got; but I believe you are right. Anyhow, you shall have your rights. If my son refuses them, his father won't."

"Thank you, Mr. Horne, I expected as much, for I have always heard of you as a good man, kind and just. That gave me courage to come."

The words struck Horne, nay, smote him with a two-edged sword. Coming from such a quarter from the outside, it showed him what responsibility was his, and how the world looked on, to discover whether he lived up to the reputation he professed.

"Will you tell me, dear," he said, with extreme frankness, "how you ever came to make this fatal mistake, the very worst surely a woman can make, since it means that she sacrifices all?"

"I—I—cared about him, and I believed him," she answered, but reluctantly, as if the words were wrung from her.

"But if you had waited you would

Uncle Wiggily's Thanksgiving

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Under the barrel that had rolled off the Farmer's wagon the Turkey Gobbler hid himself, with his big wings, the bundle of hairs hanging under his neck, and the funny red thing dangling down over his beak. As I told you in the story last night, Uncle Wiggily and Baby Bunty helped the Thanksgiving Turkey to hide beneath the barrel.

"You'll be all right there," said the rabbit gentleman. "Even if the Farmer does come back he won't see you and you'll be safe."

"I hope so," sighed the Turkey, speaking through a hole in the side of the barrel—a hole that had been made by the Farmer so the apples he had gathered would not get too hot. "I certainly don't want to go to the table at the Farmer's Thanksgiving feast."

"Oh, speaking of Thanksgiving," exclaimed Baby Bunty, "don't you think Uncle Wig, that we should be going back to the bungalow now? Auntie Wig and Nurse Jane might want us to help get ready for the party. We aren't going to have anything like you to eat," said the little orphan rabbit to the Thanksgiving Turkey.

"I am not sure whether I want him brought back on these terms," said the Turkey. "All I want is to be made right with my own people."

Horne was silent for a moment. "Are you aware that up to a few days ago Gilbert was engaged to Miss Ingalls, the only daughter of Lord Kilmarin, that she was getting ready for the wedding, and that they had only to find a church, when she returned from abroad?"

"Yes," she answered clearly. "I know all that."

"Was he engaged when you first met?"

"I don't know."

"The engagement has happily for everybody concerned, been broken off by Miss Ingalls herself. The letter containing her decision arrived at Burton Lea the very night Gilbert left the house and town. I'm sorry it helped hasten his departure."

Lily made no reply. Her errand accomplished, the strain of the moment over, she was at a loss. And she had gone very white, as if it had been too much for her.

"Sit down, and if I bring you something to drink," said Horne, very kindly, as he pushed round the easy chair.

She shook her head. "I will not stay. Will you see or write to my father? I am afraid to go back until he has been told. My father is a hard man, Mr. Horne, and this is a thing he would never forgive."

"Your mother is dead, I suppose?"

"Oh, yes, she died when we were quite little. We have had no one to guide us," she answered, simply.

"Where are you staying at Portobello?"

"At the house of Miss Fiddes, Rose-arbour, on the road to Joppa."

This should be a happy wedding day that promises constancy and devotion. The bride of the day will be always interested in her life.

Although the seed of this rule rather threatens for publishers, sensational best sellers are prognosticated.

Theatres are well-influenced under this planetary government; which presages increase in the size of audiences.

Psychic influences may be studied with a new patience, astrologers foretell, and science is to present strange discoveries. Persons who have hitherto it is the augury of good fortune. Gifts much coveted may be bestowed at Thanksgiving time.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly intelligent, scholarly and industrious. Many subjects of this sign have imagination and a power of expression. Those who have celebrated it as a birth day include Spinoza, 1632, famous philosopher; John Jay, 1753, American statesman; and Henry Thomas Buckle, 1821, English historian.

"Oh my tail!"

"I'm glad of that," gobbled the big bird. "Well, hop along if you must. Perhaps I shall be safe under this barrel. But I thought I heard some one coming just now. Maybe it was the Farmer. The Turkey still spoke through a hole in the barrel."

"I'll take a look," offered Baby Bunty. "If it's the Farmer I'll call 'Hoo Oo' like that and it isn't I'll say O. K."

"All right," laughed Uncle Wiggily. So the little orphan rabbit softly hopped to the end of the path to look for the noise that had so frightened the Turkey. And then Baby Bunty cried out:

"Oh! Oh! Oh!"

"Listen to that!" gobbled the Turkey. "It can't be the Farmer," said Uncle Wiggily. "Or Baby Bunty would have called 'Hoo Oo'! And it can't be any of our friends, for she would have said 'Hello! So it must be."

"I know! One of the Bad Chaps!" interrupted the Turkey, and he was so excited he never begged Uncle Wiggily's pardon for speaking out of turn. Just then Baby Bunty came running back.

"It's the Bob Cat!" exclaimed the little orphan rabbit. "I saw the old Bob Cat with his silly little tail no bigger than a bab's thumb. Oh, what shall we do? Oh! Oh! Oh!"

Uncle Wiggily and Baby Bunty were under the barrel.

"Oh, ho!" mewed the Bob Cat. "So here you are!"

"Yes," said Uncle Wiggily sadly, and he wished that he and Baby Bunty were somewhere else, far away.

"Well, I've come to get you," said the Bob Cat, smiling cheerfully, though Uncle Wiggily and the little orphan rabbit were far from feeling that way.

"Get ready!" mewed the Bob Cat. "I know what to do. They wanted to run away but the Bob Cat stood in the path so they couldn't run past him and started their thorn bushes which would have torn their fur coats if they had run backward. So there was nothing to do."

All of a sudden the Bob Cat felt a tickling paw, that he could not stop scratching very much, so, in order to stop the tickling, the Bob Cat backed up to the barrel and rubbed himself against it.

No sooner had he done this than his silly little tail popped in through a hole in the side of the barrel. And no sooner was the Bob Cat's tail inside the barrel than the Turkey Gobbler, hiding there, took hold of the tail in his strong beak and gave it a hard nip, tweak and pinch. The Bob Cat looked surprised and then he howled:

"Oh! Oh! Oh! My tail! My tail! Some one is trying to get my tail!"

Away he ran as fast as he could run, and Uncle Wiggily laughed and said to Baby Bunty:

"I don't believe any one would want such a silly little tail as the Bob Cat's. Do you, Bunty?"

"No," said the orphan rabbit. "I don't. But I'm thankful the Bob Cat didn't get us."

"Yes," said Uncle Wiggily. "I am." And the Turkey said:

"I'm thankful the Farmer didn't find me."

"Then let's all go to the bungalow and have a jolly Thanksgiving together," said the little orphan bunny. "Come on, Mr. Turkey!"

So the Turkey went home with Uncle Wiggily for Thanksgiving, and he had some carrot shortenage to eat. Such a feast as there was in the bungalow and how happy and thankful were all the rabbits. In the afternoon the Fox tried to get in and catch Mr. Longears. But the Turkey tweaked the Bad Chaps nose, so he ran away as the Bob Cat had done.

Keewatin, Ont. — "My husband had been suffering from indigestion for the past few years and tried several well-known remedies, but got very little relief," said Mrs. W. J. Parrish. "Life was becoming unbearable for him with the pain and bloated feeling he experienced. Upon taking the first bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery he is 100% better and all trace of indigestion is gone. He feels like a new man—is gaining weight and eats all kinds of food." Japanese Crew Is Saved In Typhoon

Glen Liner Rescues Thirty-one Men In Strong Gale Off China Coast, Near Hongkong

Hongkong, Nov. 23.—Splendid rescue work was carried out near Hongkong a few weeks ago when the Glen liner was struggling through a northeast gale to Hongkong.

Soon after dawn distress signals were observed some distance away. The vessel made all possible speed to the spot and found a Japanese motor-driven fishing vessel on the verge of sinking. Despite angry seas, the rescue of her crew of thirty-one men was effected in twenty-five minutes.

The ill-fated vessel was the Shen-shan Maru. When the typhoon was imminent, the master took shelter at the Pratas, but the full fury of the storm burst over the island, the ship was torn from her moorings, her engines wrecked and she drifted helplessly for two days.

When the Glen liner arrived on the scene to end the terrifying experience of the crew, who had practically given up hope of rescue, the Shen-shan had drifted over 150 miles from the Pratas and was almost water-logged after a very severe buffeting.

ROBERT CAPTAIN

The story of the rescue was told by Captain P. L. Sanders, master of the Glen liner. Captain Sanders was very modest about the actual rescue itself, which was, however, accomplished under most hazardous conditions. A heavy northeast gale was blowing at the time the ship was sighted. Eventually, however, the Glen liner was maneuvered alongside the doomed craft and the crew rescued.

Describing the rescue, Captain Sanders said: "About 6:15 o'clock in the morning we sighted a vessel burning distress signals. We proceeded at full speed to the scene and found her in the act of sinking. We maneuvered alongside and managed to get off the

HALF DAY BETWEEN COASTS, AS HE FLIES!

It was not such a long time between meals, but there was certainly plenty of miles, when Colonel Roscoe Turner (inset) flew from New York to Los Angeles. He made the flight in twelve hours and thirty-three minutes—between breakfast and dinner—establishing a new transcontinental east-west speed record. He averaged a little better than 100 miles an hour with stops at Columbus, Kansas City and Albuquerque. The Wedell-Williams racing plane Turner used in his speed attempts is shown just before it roared away from Floyd Bennett airport in New York. Turner hopes to break the west-east record shortly.

"G.B.S." Still Refuses to Visit States Even Though His Ship Is Going There

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—The determination of Cameron P. McIntosh, Liberal, North Battleford, Sask., to secure more information on the disaster to the freighter Bright Fan in Hudson Strait sprang into short-lived action again in the Canadian House of Commons yesterday.

"When," asked Mr. McIntosh, "will the Prime Minister permit the member for Nelson (B. M. Stitt, Conservative, Nelson, Manitoba) to make good his claim that the Bright Fan was deliberately sunk?"

"The honorable gentleman is out of order," said the Speaker. "It is an important question and out of order."

"Well, I can't see that it is," Mr. McIntosh continued, but his voice was drowned out.

Three Members Of Ice Champs Retire

Toronto, Nov. 23.—The Toronto Globe said today that three members of the Toronto Nationals, Allan Cope, champion, retired for the season following persistent rumors that "all was not well" in the sea flea ranks. The three are Stuffy Mueller, goaltender, Bruce Paul, star defenceman, and Weimer Lough, centre.

"The decision of Paul who was drafted last Saturday to retire is not surprising," said the Globe.

"The reason given for Paul not being used Saturday was that he was not in condition."

"Paul and Lough apparently had decided a few days ago that they would not line up with the team again under the Toronto management," Mueller went into the National dressing room yesterday evening and explained that he, too, was forced to tender his resignation, due to the fact that he had promised to "stick with the other two."

Ss. Chinese Prince Has Sailed From Java In New Service to Canadian Atlantic Ports

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—With the object of increasing direct trade between Canada and certain portions of the British Empire in the far east as well as the Netherlands East Indies, arrangements have been made by the department of trade and commerce and a group of steamship lines operating between Java and the Atlantic seaboard to provide a monthly steamship service operating between Halifax and Egypt, Ceylon, British Malaya and also Java in the Netherlands East Indies.

The new service was inaugurated this month with the departure of the Ss. Chinese Prince from Java on Sunday last. It will arrive at Halifax January 2 after having called enroute at Singapore and Ceylon.

Announcement of this effect was made this week by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, who stated for some time past a careful study has been made of the trade between these countries and Canada. It was found the present trade could be greatly increased if sufficient effort was made in the right direction.

EAST HINDERS NORTHERN PORT

Work of Developing Churchill Must Be Done From the West, Says E. Cora Hind

Winnipeg, Nov. 23.—The port of Churchill needs to-day accurate publicity well distributed in Great Britain, New York and Eastern Canada, E. Cora Hind, commercial and agricultural editor of The Winnipeg Free Press, said in an address before the Winnipeg real estate board and the On-to-the-Bay Association yesterday.

Dealing with the pleasure of her recent trip from Churchill to England, she went on to speak of the "atmosphere of antagonism which seems to prevail among more or less official circles in Churchill itself, and added these were mainly new from Montreal or Ottawa."

Miss Hind urged her audience to work to induce western boards of trade to send strong delegations to meet the first boats coming in next season and make a real occasion of it. She also urged preparation and distribution in Britain and Eastern Canada of statements as to the advantages of the Bay route, avoiding any exaggeration.

"Every effort should be made," she said, "to induce western merchants to order goods brought in by that route. All ships coming in next season should have some inward cargo."

"Churchill is a great natural port, the Hudson Strait is feasible and can easily be made more so and for a longer season, but the work must be done from the west," she said, "the east will hinder, not help."

Alaska Sends Out Big Gold Cargoes

Shipments Worth $1,743,630 Came Out of Northern Gold Mines During October

Great Yukon River Now Frozen Solid For Long Winter Months, Report Says

Seattle, Nov. 23.—Gold shipments from Alaska during October were valued at $1,743,630 and were the largest in any one month in a decade, according to figures received to-day by Shiri H. Blalock, district manager in Seattle for the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, from the Alaska Territorial Chamber of Commerce at Juneau.

Much of the gold represented the clean-up from dredges in the Nome and Fairbanks districts. Virtually all the dredges in these districts have suspended work until next spring, due to winter weather.

The steamship Arthur J. Baldwin of the Arctic Transport Company, which was the last ship to sail from Nome this season, carried $75,000 in gold bullion, several thousand carcasses of reindeer and also live reindeer for exhibition purposes in eastern cities during the holidays.

Reports from Alaska yesterday said the Yukon River is now frozen over.

for its entire length and King Winter rules in the vast territory.

The following shipments of products of Alaska were sent out of the territory during October:

Fresh and frozen halibut and salmon, $33,606; canned salmon, $298,268; cured and preserved cod, herring and salmon, $464,915; shell fish, including clams, crabs and shrimp, $31,131; fish meal, $49,745; fish oil, $30,755; whale fertilizer and meal, $8,066; copper ore, $13,860; reindeer meat, $3,500; marble, $23,521, and trophies, $9,860.

The total value of all shipments during October was $4,094,863, compared with $4,532,053 the same month last year.

SALT SPRING ISLAND

Ganges, Nov. 23.—The Guild of Sunshine met on Saturday afternoon in the clubroom at Ganges. Mrs. C. S. Holmes presided, members present being Mesdames G. J. Mount, E. Parsons, H. Johnson, F. Stacey, C. Goodrich, G. C. Mount, C. W. Baker, R. Young, E. Lumley, W. Morton, F. Wagg, A. Cartwright, H. Wood, J. Bennett, and W. Rogers. An old member of the guild, Mrs. E. Carter of San Diego, Cal., was welcomed as a visitor. Four Kenwood blankets which the guild will donate to the Lady Minto Hospital, were shown and admired. The bridge drive held at the home of the president was a financial success, and a vote of thanks was given Mrs. and Mr. Holmes. A sale of home-cooking and a Dutch auction of superfluities were held. Tea was served by Mrs. H. Noon and Mrs. W. Norton. About $10 was realized by the sale and tea. The next meeting will be held on Monday evening at the home of Eric Dunn.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Saves $2. No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any drugstore, get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 10 oz. bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar-syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. Mix cooking apples—1/2 doz. each! This will make 16 ounces of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and breaks the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

PRINCESS IN THE ROLE OF EDITOR

"And then the little Princess became a newspaper editor and lived happily ever after" is the modern version of the old fairy story, as lived by Princess Tatiana Wlassensky, who is thought to be the youngest editor in Great Britain. Princess Tatiana is the granddaughter of Gordon Settridge, wealthy owner of London's largest department store. The newspaper which she owns and edits is "Will O' Wisp." It is said to be circulated in England, on the Continent and in the United States.

ILLUMINATED GARDEN TREES

May Add Festive Touch to the Christmas Season in Victoria

Brilliantly illuminated and decorated Christmas trees in Victoria gardens will lend a festive touch to the Christmas season if plans considered at a meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce yesterday evening mature. The scheme was outlined by Alderman John Worthington. If the plan spread so that every Christmas in all the gardens of the city illuminated outside trees would be as popular as the essential indoor tree. Backing his idea, Alderman Worthington offered to head the prize list with a substantial donation.

JOHN HARVEY HEADS S.P.C.A.

Returned President of Victoria Branch at Annual Meeting

Activities of the Victoria branch of the Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals last year, summarized in reports of various officials, and election of leaders for the year, featured the annual meeting of the organization in the Campbell Building yesterday evening.

John Harvey was returned as president and A. R. Sherwood was re-elected secretary-treasurer. J. T. Braden was named vice-president, Lindley Crease, K.C., honorary counsel, Dr. R. Hamilton and Dr. H. Keown, honorary veterinary surgeons, and Mrs. Oscar Bass, Mrs. A. H. Spurr, Mrs. G. Storey Waller, Madame A. B. Vivenot, Mrs. E. R. Crane, Mrs. R. G. Walker, Mrs. Howard Harman, W. G. Lemm, Alderman R. F. Williams and Stuart Bruce, members of the executive committee.

An invitation will be sent to Hon. J. W. Fordham Johnson, Lieutenant-Governor, asking him to accept the position of patron of the local society. Reduced revenues during the year had led to an expenditure of more money than was collected during 1932, reports from Mr. Harvey and Mr. Sherwood.

The legacy of $1000 left by the late Mrs. E. L. Beck to the society had been invested in sound securities, it was stated.

INTERESTING REVEALED
The report of George A. Allen, inspector for the S.P.C.A., he stated he had inspected the Willows Exhibition grounds where a number of animals had been quartered during the fair. Animals were being made to cut down the number of stray cats and dogs and a move was being pressed to enforce the licensing of cats to the mercy of the public.

Speaking of the horse races he stated: "I am doubtful as to the wholesale use of drugs. At the last Colwood meet, R.C.M. police officers were in attendance for the purpose of locating persons administering drugs to the horses, but none were observed. It was found necessary to have two horses excused as they appeared unfit to race and one horse had to be killed owing to injuries received."

"Animals used in the Napa Valley were found to be in good condition and receiving proper treatment. More than 7000 inspections of horses, cattle, poultry, rabbits and dogs were carried out by the society during the year. Four hundred and nineteen cases were treated and fifty-six animals destroyed."

AGE REFLECTED BY MODERN ART

Max. Maynard Tells College Society of Aim and Trend in Modern Art Movements

"Modern art is a reflection of the age," expressed the artist and nervous tension of this rapidly pulsating age in which we live," said Max Maynard, prominent Victoria artist, in an address to the Victoria College Society yesterday evening.

The meeting was the first function of the week to be open to the public in conjunction with the Victoria Week programme. The president, Humphrey Toms, occupied the chair.

In opening his address Mr. Maynard described art as experience that has been given form. The world of art was the world of science, he said, and was not the world of art. The world of art was the realm of the mind. Before discussing modern art, he said, he would discuss the characteristics of various movements in art from early Greek times to the present day. The classic age, he explained, was not its simplicity and lucidity. It had certain qualities of restraint, sanity and balance.

The lecture was accompanied by lantern slides and at the conclusion of the address an open forum was held.

GROVER VICTOR OVER BANDIT

Pittsburgh, Nov. 23.—Evil glinted in the eyes of a gunman as he strode into a grocery store and whipped out an automatic.

"Stick 'em up fast," he snarled at the manager, John W. Gulser.

"All right, go ahead and shoot," replied Gulser. "Things couldn't be much worse."

The hold-up man paused, stammered, flushed and with hanging head wheeled about and walked out of the store.

RUSSIA

To the Editor:—As a reader of your paper let me say at the outset that politically in this country I stand neutral. I am in every election for what I consider is in the best interests of the Dominion or province and further, more, I hold not brief for Bolshevism, but I will say that I certainly approve of the letters by Kroeger and another signed by a reader, in that they are informative and give the above subject fair and just criticism.

At this stage of the international game I think the Russian experiment may well be looked upon by unbiased thinkers as one of the most colossal attempts in the history of mankind for a real and determined project for the social and economic betterment of the masses of that country by a brand new form of government "by the people and for the people." We know that the constitution of the United States was founded on exactly the same principle, but if Washington could rise out of his grave and see the mess that has been made of it he would get back into it in spiritual shame. Your correspondent, Mr. Stafford, says his history books did not tell him of the cruelties, atrocities and banishments perpetrated under the czars of Russia and he immediately admits they were carried out by the minions of a bureaucracy of that regime. Up till the fall of the czars, I have been reading of these cruelties and horrible persecutions since I was seven or eight years old, and if the czars did not actively take a hand they were absolute monarchs and their word was law. Even King Edward protested at one time to the Russian czar and government, but the same old game went on. Now this is historical fact and I submit, sir, that if the Russians have shaken of these shackles forever, and are emerging into a free and educated people, determined to see that every member of their great country is properly cared for, with the right to earn a decent and comfortable living, banishing crime and poverty from their midst as the ultimate aim, then, I say, the experiment is to be applauded.

If a man of the calibre of Dean Quainton can take the subject from books, analyze it carefully and lay the truth before his readers, it is not time those who claim the system should keep out of print. They neither justify themselves nor convince any sane-minded readers, and what is more, those who talk about going to Russia before breakfast and so on, might just consider that if the Russian adventure proves successful, in another year or two, may perhaps be a good many of the millions of starving and unemployed people of other countries, who would want to take a test run of Russia's book. Any schoolboy knows that a country is only prosperous in the ratio of proportion that its masses can buy. I am sorry, Mr. Editor, to have taken up so much valuable space, but I do like to see square dealing.

DRAMATIC ART

To the Editor:—I should like to express my appreciation of the play in "If Four Walls Told," presented last week in the Memorial Hall. The play was not at all something in the case, the principal excellence of the play. In my opinion most of the players did exceptionally good work.

In the second act Barbara Hall revealed a simplicity, restraint and capacity for keeping still, which to my mind made her work really great.

Muriel Thompson showed a similarly complete absorption in the character she was playing and I think deserves special mention for the really splendid comedy she provided.

I have no connection with the players, but have much pleasure in congratulating them. More of such work will help to maintain a high standard of dramatic art in Victoria.

UNEMPLOYED

To the Editor:—Apropos of the paramount subject before Victoria, namely, "Unemployment," the writer has been asked the question: "How many 'victims' of Victoria are out of direct relief?" According to responsible authorities, the figures to date are: Married men or heads of families receiving direct relief (the latest figures up to date), 900; single men on city direct relief, 600. With women and children the total is 4,100.

These are within the precincts of the corporation of the city of Victoria.

A DISCLAIMER

To the Editor:—The Victoria District Council, Canadian Legion, comprising all the branches of the legion in this area, desires to disassociate itself from any misunderstanding that may exist in the public mind regarding any affiliation it may appear to have with a local concert party calling itself "The Legionaires."

As I am in the local press about three weeks ago stated in effect that the District Council was connected in no way whatsoever with this concert party, and it now feels that it should reiterate this fact because during the last few days the office of the council has been subjected to numerous inquiries in this regard from prominent citizens who evidently were unaware that no relationship existed between the concert party and the Canadian Legion in this area.

At the same time the District Council desires to state for the information of anyone concerned, and for its own protection, that it will not be financially or otherwise responsible in any way in any misunderstanding that may arise between any persons and the "Legionaires," through the adoption of this name by the concert party.

To further support the above, the council adds that all communications emanating from it appear on its own private letterheads and over the proper signature of its appointed secretary.

For the District Council, Victoria and district zone,

C. A. GILL.
Secretary, the Canadian Legion, 625 Courtney Street, Victoria, B.C., November 22, 1932.

MILLS OF GOD

To the Editor:—Toronto papers have recently been doing research to circumstances surrounding the death of Dr. Brebner of the New York City Health Department. Dr. Brebner was formerly of Toronto and was assistant professor of bacteriology at New York University and Bellevue Medical School.

The deceased was once associated with Dr. Banting of Toronto and had also been doing research with him on the fatal paralytic at St. Louis. While doing some similar work in New York he was bitten by a monkey. According to press report "he was engaged in removing the spleen from a monkey when the animal bit him in the hand."

The point that must strike anyone interested in humane work is that the monkey was able to bite and therefore could not have been under an anesthetic during its own painful operation. According to Dr. Banting, the late Dr. Brebner was a man who carried on research work with "tremendous enthusiasm."

This case has been likened to that of King Alexander of Greece, who died some years ago after a bite from a pet monkey. In this case, and doubtless also in that of Dr. Brebner, inoculations were given but they did not save the patient; must have died either because of them or in spite of them. Dr. Brebner was removing the spleen of the wretched monkey as a preliminary to inoculating it with infantile paralysis germs. It is assumed that being an ardent bacteriologist he would believe in the unproved theory that germs are the cause of disease.

There is surely a nemesis, a law of cause and effect, and the mills of God grind slowly but surely. The torments of the helpless and innocent no matter to what end, can never appeal to anyone endowed with a fine sense of justice. "Let us remember that knowledge and the search for it may often save the patient, and those who follow it are always merciful."

Empire—"Insult," a British Picture.
Playhouse—"Bachelor's Affairs," with Adolphe Menjou.

DOMINION THEATRE

Walter Ponde, who never seems to direct a film without a piano somewhere about for him to musically indicate his moods, raised almost as much laughter as Hulbert during the filming of "Jack's the Boy" now showing at the Dominion Theatre. In demonstrating how a piano-tuner works.

Jack Hulbert and Cicely Courtneidge had to enter a crook's house in disguise—Jack as a piano tuner, Cicely as a window cleaner. Jack extracted the most weird and excruciating sounds from the tormented baby grand. Walter Ponde assured the interested onlookers it was correct. "We must have a 'misplaced belief in piano tuners!'"

CAPITOL THEATRE

Love scenes between Constance Bennett and Neil Hamilton in Warner Bros. "Two Against the World," now at the Capitol Theatre, had to be postponed to the final week of production due to the fact that Hamilton was indisposed—he had four cracked and dislocated ribs.

Scenes for another picture in which he was required to ride a polo pony caused the mishap. The pony was one which is popularly described as being able to turn on a dime. Hamilton is used to bigger change. On a half-dollar, he says, he might have stuck to the horse. As it was, he went off on a tangent and landed—or all places—on the four ribs.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

An unsophisticated country girl and her older gold-digging sister make life miserable for a rich old bachelor after he marries the younger of the pair in "Bachelor's Affairs," the Fox comedy now playing at the Playhouse Theatre with Adolphe Menjou in the leading role. The sister roles are enacted by Minna Gombell and Joan Marsh. Others in the cast include Allan Dinehart, Herbert Mundin and Arthur Piersen.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Warren William, featured player in "The Mouthpiece," the Warner Bros. picture now at the Columbia Theatre, is the only player on the Warner-Fox National lot permitted to have a special table reserved for him at lunch.

William has discovered that he can't learn his lines at home or any other place than the studio and its environment of restless activity. When this was made known to executives he was allotted a secluded table, which does not, however, isolate him and keep him out of the hectic studio atmosphere all of which helps William make the script come to life.

EMPIRE THEATRE

John Gielgud, who is, without doubt, one of the finest actors on the stage today, has an important role in "Insult," the French-Foreign Legion picture, which is now showing at the Empire Theatre. He plays the part of the civil governor of a French out-

TOLD SHE WOULD NEVER GET RID OF SCIATICA

But Bathurst, N.B., woman did—at the cost of $1—with T-R-C's

Here is the story of a woman who, six years ago, was terribly crippled with Sciatica—that sharp, stabbing pain from thigh to heel. She actually lay on hot water bottles for weeks, and was told her case was so bad she would never get rid of her Sciatica.

"My landlady saw I was hopeless and told me of a man who had boarded there getting rid of his Rheumatism by using T-R-C's (Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules). This man hadn't walked for years, but by taking a steady treatment had driven the Rheumatism right out of him."

"Well, I got a $1 box and could hardly believe the benefit I received. Why, that one $1 box drove every trace of Sciatica out of me. Once in a while since that time I get a twinge, but a few doses of T-R-C's drive it away." Mrs. Tom Magson.

Time and time again T-R-C's have given safe, speedy relief from painful Sciatica; also from Acute Rheumatic suffering, Neuritis, Neuralgia and Lumbago (Lame Back). Deep-rooted, stubborn cases of Rheumatism require patient and correct use of T-R-C's for a reasonable length of time; but you are sure of relief if you persist with T-R-C's. No harmful or habit-forming drugs.

T-R-C's do this—Enter the blood stream and help your body throw off the misery-causing poisons which have accumulated in your blood. When these go, health and happiness return. T-R-C's are 25c and $1 per box at your dealer's.

You owe it to yourself to try T-R-C's

post. John Gielgud, made his first appearance on the stage in 1921 as the herald in "Henry the Fifth." He has played in numerous Shakespearean roles with great distinction. Some of the plays in which Gielgud has appeared include "The Constant Nymph," "Othello," "Red Rust," "The Lady with the Lamp," and "Red Sunday."

COMING TO EMPIRE

Remarkable strides forward were made by British pictures during 1932. Just at the end of the year "Mischief," a British and Dominion production, set the seal upon all the farcical comedies of the year. The story is one of the familiar Ben Travers brand, who will be principally remembered for "Rookery Nook" and "Plunder." The new picture, which the Empire Theatre will show on Friday, is a typical Ralph Lynn subject, and affords that great comedian abundant opportunity to display his genius. He is supported by Winifred Shottler and a fine cast.

Girls Fail in Plea Boys Learn Cooking

The Young People's Society of Wilfrid Laurier United Church on Tuesday evening made arrangements for a social on December 6, when the Sidney group will be guests.

After a sing-song, led by Miss Dorothy Hodgson, a debate was held on "Resolved, That Boys Should Learn to Cook." The affirmative was presented by Edith Hodgson and Jean Fryatt, and the negative by Billy Allan and Ian Humphries. The decision of the judges was in favor of the negative.

Government Provides Rations For Indians

Unemployment Is Serious Among B.C. Natives, Says Col. G. S. Pragnell, Kamloops Inspector

Fishing and Trapping Poor This Year; Indians Are on the Increase

Unemployment among the Indians of British Columbia is becoming serious, according to Col. G. S. Pragnell of Kamloops, Inspector of Indian agencies, who arrived in the city yesterday after making a tour of reservations on the West Coast of Vancouver Island.

"The unemployment situation among the Indians is becoming serious, and the government is finding it necessary to increase their rations," said Col. Pragnell in an interview given this morning at the Empress Hotel, where he is staying during his visit to Victoria.

"Take the 'West Coast' as I proceeded. The fishing this season has been poor, with no returns, and consequently the Indian fishermen have suffered. While the crops are good in the interior of the province, there is no employment. In the north the trapping is poor and the low price of furs makes it difficult for natives engaged in that occupation to make a living."

No money is supplied the Indians. It was explained by Col. Pragnell, but when food supplies run low they are allowed government rations.

SLIGHT INCREASE

The Indians of B.C. are increasing although not rapidly, the estimate of the inspector being from one to two thousand within the last decade. There are now about 25,000 Indians in the province.

The Indians of British Columbia are divided into six linguistic nations. Col. Pragnell stated they are as follows: Nootka, West Coast and Alsea Bay area; Tsimshian, Prince Rupert district; Haida, Queen Charlotte Islands; Salishan, southern part of B.C.; Athabasca, northern interior; and Tlingit, Northwest Coast.

Fifteen Indian agencies exist in the province, all of which are inspected by the inspector. He said that the number of school days this evening at the "Back to School" night which will be celebrated there in conjunction with Education Week activities.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the visitation will adjourn to the gymnasium where an old-fashioned dancing is planned for a few hours to wind up the evening.

Bounce Board On Wife's Head

Peter Lanchick Sentenced to Jail For Trouble Over Cribbage Game

A family cribbage game at the home of Peter S. Lanchick the other night ended in an argument, which, in turn, ended in Lanchick bouncing the cribbage board off the head of Mrs. Lanchick, according to the evidence given in court to-day before Judge Lampman. Lanchick was sentenced to two months in jail.

Mrs. Lanchick, who was charged with assaulting and beating his wife and causing actual bodily harm took the stand and testified he only sought "to bang" the cribbage board in an effort to emphasize a point in his argument, but that it flew apart when he brought his arm down and half of it struck his wife.

Prosecutor Harold Tait, on the evidence of the two young Lanchick sons, told the court "there was no doubt the whole cribbage board was thrown with such force at Mrs. Lanchick that it completely demolished one-half the board."

The remains of the shattered board were brought into court by the Saanich police and handed to the judge, who tried to fit them together.

Miss Wilma Lanchick and her brothers, George and Fred, testified that the cribbage board hit his mother with such force that it cut her forehead open.

Constable Percy Cummings, who arrived shortly after the affair, told how long and deep the wound was.

Mrs. Lanchick was called to the stand to testify, but after she had been sworn she collapsed and said she could not testify.

Cleve White, defence counsel, said that if the police had kept out of the case peace would have been restored and harmony prevailed.

Prosecutor Tait referred to the law which made Mr. Lanchick liable for two years in prison and lashes.

Mr. White asked that judge allow Mr. Lanchick out of jail for a while so separation proceedings could be carried on.

The judge, however, said he saw no need for such freedom in order to carry through the separation negotiations, and sentenced Mr. Lanchick to two months in jail.

VISIT SCHOOLS IN ESQUIMALT

Parents and Friends Make Calls at Lamson Street and High Schools

Esquimalt schools to-day celebrated Education Week as parents and friends interested in the two institutions in the district visited the classrooms of Lamson Street School and Esquimalt High School, listened to the lessons being presented and then gathered in the former building for tea, served by members of the home economics class.

The visitors walked into the rooms, thrown open from 2 to 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and gained a splendid idea of the manner in which the young students received their instruction. The classes were interrupted to only a slight extent by the callers, who showed keen interest in the work being done.

Shortly after 3 o'clock the parents, friends and teachers gathered in Lamson Street School, where tea was served. The School Board and Municipal Council were well represented at the home.

E. J. Kelway, delighted the gathering with a splendid selection of songs as accompanied by Mrs. W. W. McVie, a student of Lamson Street, also assisted in the entertainment with a vocal number.

Great interest was shown by the parents in the displays of work in the manual training quarters, where some excellent specimens were on view.

GOES TO BED IN WRONG HOUSE

Charles Bland, Charged With Entering, Blames It on Friend's Home Brew

Charles Ashton Bland, 59 San Juan Avenue, testified in Judge Lampman's court to-day that he had drunk a couple of bottles of home brew before he started home and missed the last car.

Louis Charles Impey, 323 Kingston Street, was called to the stand by Prosecutor John L. Clay. He testified he was awakened by his wife at 2.30 o'clock. She whispered there was someone in the house. They got up and went into the hall.

In the front room off the hall he heard someone mumbling and talking. Mr. Impey went on. "The door had been locked by a catch on the side but we did not go in. My wife phoned for the police."

Constable Wesley Harper took the witness stand and told how he and a patrol wagon staff responded to the call. With the Impeys they unlocked the door and entered the room where they had heard the mumbling and talking. They found Bland lying on the bed, with his shoes and one sock off and his belt unbuttoned, having apparently come in through the window which had been opened.

Bland, who was charged with unlawful entering, told the court he had started for his home on San Juan Avenue after drinking two bottles of home brew, and did not know how he had got into the Kingston Street house.

"The first time I knew about being in Impey's house was when I woke up in the police station," Bland went on. "This man broke in for a test, I suppose," said the judge. "He must have been pretty drunk when he goes into someone else's house and does what he does. It is not his own. All he wanted, it seems, was a place to rest."

Prosecutor Clay said Bland was not too drunk, however, to recognize Constable Harper when he entered the room and called him by his name. He said the two knew each other well as Bland had been into a lot of police trouble.

The judge said he was not satisfied on the man's reason. Before passing judgment he asked Prosecutor Clay to look up cases bearing on this and report at the continuation of the case at 10.30 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Plan Tests To Find Radio Trouble Cause

Early Morning Experiments Arranged to Solve Interference Problem

City Power House Source of Disturbance, Department Claims

Following the discovery by troubleshooters of the Radio Branch of the Department of Marine that the city powerhouse is the source of some of the interference to radio reception here, plans were laid at the City Hall this morning to locate the cause.

E. J. Haughton, division superintendent of the department, M. Hutchinson, city electrician, and Alderman T. W. Hawkins and John Worthington, discussed the matter with Mayor Leeming, and arrangements were made for a series of tests.

The tests, which will necessitate turning off the city street lights for certain periods, will be held between 1 and 5 o'clock in the morning while a trouble-shooter radio car patrols the districts mostly affected to locate the cause of the disturbance.

In a letter to the Mayor, Mr. Haughton referred to the inductive interference recently noticed in reception and stated that part of the trouble had been traced by the department's car to the powerhouse. The tests are necessary to determine just how great the effect is and what may be done to remedy the situation.

ST. ANDREW'S Y.P.S. See Art Gallery

Yesterday evening in the church lecture room, the Young People's Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held their weekly meeting. The devotional period was led by Leonard Hall, who took as his subject "Humility," and his text from John 13:12, "Know ye what I have done to you," dealing with Christ washing the disciples' feet.

The business period followed at which it was decided to create a recreation club in conjunction with the society, to meet on Friday evenings. It was also decided to purchase Kiwanis song books for the use of the society. Mrs. H. B. McKimling then entertained the gathering with her art gallery. This is a wonderful collection of oddities and caused much amusement. Bob Milliken moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. McKimling.

The next meeting of the society will be on November 29, which will be "Prize Night." On December 6 they will be entertained by Major Crockett with an illustrated lecture on the West Indies, and on December 16 they will give a concert which will be open to the public.

Too drunk, however, to recognize Constable Harper when he entered the room and called him by his name. He said the two knew each other well as Bland had been into a lot of police trouble.

The judge said he was not satisfied on the man's reason. Before passing judgment he asked Prosecutor Clay to look up cases bearing on this and report at the continuation of the case at 10.30 o'clock to-morrow morning.

It was also explained that the gross profits per sale of the board will not suffer, but in some cases will actually be larger than at present as the reductions made by the board are less than the total reductions made in the bid down cost to the board.

The new price lists have been approved by Attorney-General Pooley and the cabinet.

CREATE WORK MEMBERS URGE

Employment Will Save Self-Respect, Human Interest—and Backers Say

Creation of work should be the first consideration by purchasers of Human Interest Bonds. It is pointed out by members of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce who have pledged their support to the scheme to alleviate suffering among unemployed of Victoria.

"With 800 to 900 known heads of families idle, the prime necessity at the moment is of course employment. Practically all of these men are anxious to work and would appreciate this solution of their difficulties above all others. Work will give them hope, save their self-respect, and, if available in sufficient quantity, will remove them and their families from those seeking aid and place them among those who are willing to assist others," the chamber emphasizes.

"In the city of Victoria approximately 10 per cent of the population is receiving official relief and a great many more are through no fault of their own, finding it impossible to provide themselves with the necessities of life. Men, women and children are suffering privations from lack of food, clothing and adequate shelter despite the efforts of Dominion, provincial and municipal governments to cope with the situation in supplying the absolute minimum of the necessities of existence. If these official efforts are not supplemented the results will be disastrous and far reaching in the destruction of the morale and health of large numbers of our citizens."

The sponsors of Human Interest Bonds (backed by practically all churches, welfare associations, service clubs, business and women's organizations) feel that the citizens are ready and willing to do what they can according to their means to assist the less fortunate of those among us and thereby avert much of the present suffering with its drain on the health of the coming generation."

Grounds Set For Important Soccer Games Saturday

Saanich Thistles Meet Esquimalt at Lower Beacon Hill

Coast League First Division Leaders and Runners-up in Crucial Fixture

Two Matches In Second Division

Victoria West and Victoria City Meet at Hampton Road; Games Start at 2.30 p.m.

Grounds for Saturday's important Pacific Coast League football matches were announced today by Secretary J. R. Jones. The fixture between the league-leading Saanich Thistles and Esquimalt will take place at the lower Beacon Hill pitch, with J. Robb as referee. Victoria City and the Victoria Wests will meet in the other first division match at the Hampton Road ground, with W. Okell in charge.

In the second division two matches will be played with the Saanich Thistles opposing the Esquimalt eleven at Reynolds Road and Victoria West and Victoria City playing at the lower Central Park. D. Swan will referee the former match and A. Davies the latter.

All four matches will get under way at 2.30 o'clock.

IMPORTANT MATCH

The Thistles-Esquimalt match is one of the most crucial of the season. The former are out in front by two and a half games and the Dockers need a win badly to remain within striking distance of the leaders. The Thistles have scored in one more game than Esquimalt. In their matches to date the leaders have won six and lost one and have scored twenty goals and had only six registered against them. Esquimalt has won three games, lost two and drawn one. They have driven the ball into the nets of opponents sixteen times and have been scored on eleven times. The Wests and City will fight to remain out of the cellar position. The former now hold down third position by a one-point margin over the City. Should the Wests lose Saturday they will drop into last position and this is the main thing they will battle to avoid. The City, on the other hand, are just as anxious to get out of the last place.

The standings of teams in the various senior divisions of the Pacific Coast Football Association follow:

Victoria First Division
Team	W	L	D	P
Saanich Thistles	4	1	0	0
Esquimalt	3	2	1	0
Victoria City	2	3	0	1
Victoria West	1	4	0	1

SAM M'ADAM WITH REGINA

Former Member of Vancouver Lions Will Play Hockey With Prairie Club

Regina, Nov. 23.—Regina Capitals are out to go places and do things in the Western Canada Professional Hockey League and their two latest acquisitions, Sammy McAdam and Bobby Kirk, both of Winnipeg and both former U.S. pros, will be a great help in keeping the ball rolling.

Kenny MacKenzie, mentor of the team, opines:

McAdam, a centre man and former member of the Vancouver club in the former Pacific Coast League, and Kirk, right-winger and one-time member of the St. Louis Flyers, were signed up by MacKenzie during his jaunt to Winnipeg this week.

A third player, "Cally" McCallum, Lumsden, known to all Saskatchewan hockey fans, is slated for a tryout with the Capitals.

The Capitals held their first workout today.

Calgary, Nov. 23.—Art Jerwa yesterday became the third of the famed Cammore (Alfa) hockey family to join pro ranks, and the tenth player to be signed by Lloyd Turner for his Calgary Tigers in the Western Canada Professional Hockey League.

Jerwa, twenty-six-year-old amateur, who will be seen at centre ice for the Tigers, is a brother of Joe Jerwa of the Boston Bruins, and Frank Jerwa of the Boston Cubs. Another brother of his, Steve, is still playing amateur hockey with Cammore. Art has been playing hockey more than a dozen years, and last season played in the Seattle City League.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 23.—Knocked out in the first round but saved by the bell at the count of eight, Ah Wing Lee, Portland Chinese lightweight, staged a comeback in the later rounds that won him the decision in his ten-round main event with Benny Pelz, also of Portland, in yesterday evening's fight card here. Lee weighed 131½ and Pelz 134.

The Chinese fighter was still draped face down over the lower ropes when the bell saved him in the first round. In the ninth Lee dropped Pelz with a short, sharp left to the face and in the tenth had him tottering all over the ring in a whirlwind finish.

Bob Heckler, 170, Salt Lake City, knocked out Jack Young, 181, San Francisco, in the first round of the six-round semi-windup.

CARDINALS IN HOOP VICTORY

Victoria High Team Defeats Mount View 38 to 9 in Inter-high Basketball League

Playing a fine brand of basketball behind the excellent shooting of Wallis and Andrews, the Victoria High Cardinals defeated the Mount View 38 to 9 in an Inter-high basketball game yesterday. The Cardinals displayed an attack more effective than in their previous games and look like strong contenders for the championship. By virtue of their win, they are well up in the running for first half honors.

Andrews scored under the hoop and Wallis sank a shot from the side to give the Victoria team the lead. Greenwood and Brown came through with baskets to put the clubs on even terms. From this point the Cardinals started their brilliant offensive play, and Andrews's field basket gave them a lead they never lost. Stark, Shepherd and Andrews scored points before half time and as a result the Cardinals led 14 to 4 at the interval.

The second half started at a fast clip with both teams in high gear. Taylor and Wallis tallied for the Cardinals while Brown scored from the side for Mount View. MacMurchie, Wallis and Taylor continued to go through for baskets and as a result the Cardinals held a lead at the final whistle.

Ross Hocking refereed.

The teams' individual scores follow:

Cardinals—Andrews 10, Haddon 10, Wallis 10, Stark 2, Taylor 6, Mount View—Betherington 1, Munkley, Greenwood 4, Sparks, Brown 4, Nesbitt, Waddell.

ARIZMENDI IS HELD TO DRAW

Sensational Mexican Featherweight in Hard Battle With Varjas Milling

Los Angeles, Nov. 23.—In a wild, free-swinging fight, Baby Arizmendi, Mexican featherweight, and Varjas Milling, hard-lifting Filipino, fought ten rounds to a draw here yesterday evening before a madly cheering throng of 6,000. Arizmendi weighed 126½ and Milling a half pound less.

Arizmendi staged a big rally in the eighth, forcing Milling to the ropes with rights to the head and consistently stepped inside. He, Filipino's right to gain a decisive edge. He came back in the ninth with the same tactics, leading principally to Milling's body and twice got the Filipino in a corner where he nailed him with stiff rights to the body and lefts to the head.

Milling came out like a flash in the last round and connected solidly with rights as Arizmendi chose to stand toe to toe with him and battle it out, standing in mid-ring through the most open fighting of the bout. They flailed each other with jarring rights to the head, neither giving an inch although Arizmendi seemed to tire badly and the Filipino apparently gained strength, the steam going out of the Mexican's blows. Milling rocked him solidly with a right to the head as the bell sounded and the referee quickly called it a draw.

SPECULATION RIFE OVER STRENGTH OF VILLA AND ARSENAL

Hampton Wanderers by three clear goals. They ran through the cup series without having a single goal scored against them.

KEEN COMPETITION
Arsenal beat Everton, but the latter team were so good at Goodison Park for their fourteenth game that Aston Villa actually lost another point, yet the Arsenal team were three clear.

Arsenal, playing at home, just managed to get maximum points by the lone goal against Newcastle United, their conquerors at Wembley last April. The writer is privileged to see both the present leaders perform in the 1929-30 season within five days. Arsenal then beat Leeds United by four clear goals and Aston Villa were beaten at the Baseball Park by Derby County by the same score.

When Arsenal opened the season at Highbury with a defeat from West Bromwich Albion, there were those who declared that they were not the team they were—that they were going to displace.

That illusion has been quickly dispelled. Until last Saturday they had not again been beaten, and in away engagements have proved themselves champions of all. Arsenal are still a power to be reckoned with.

Although Arsenal have shown the same wonderful goal average as the Villa, they have scored more goals than any club in the first division. But what of the immediate future? How long will the great duel continue? Middlesex brought visit Arsenal next Saturday, and Aston Villa will perform at Maine Road against Manchester City. Both the former and latter of this quartette were beaten last week by two clear goals.

SERIOUS SITUATIONS
Promoted teams from both sections of the third division, so far, are doing well in the second division. Fulham and Lincoln City occupy positions in the top half of the table. Wolverhampton Wanderers, who went up with Leeds United, have lost twelve of their fifteen games. Their position at the foot of the first division table is a precarious one. Of the demoted clubs West Ham United find themselves in the most serious position and in the hope of improving matters, no less than seven reserves were drafted into the first team for their game with Oldham. But they are still at the bottom of the ladder.

Saturday's great duel programme follows, these games will be played on the ground of the first-mentioned clubs:

Arsenal vs. Middlesbrough.
Birmingham vs. Wolverhampton Wanderers.
Blackburn Rovers vs. Portsmouth.
Blackpool vs. Liverpool.
Derby County vs. Leicester City.
Everton vs. Bolton Wanderers.
Leeds United vs. Chelsea.
Manchester City vs. Aston Villa.
Sheffield Wednesday vs. Huddersfield Town.
Sunderland vs. Newcastle United.
West Bromwich Albion vs. Sheffield United.

Mary Campbell won the Class A monthly par competition played at the Victoria Golf Club yesterday, finishing 2 up. Barbara Bullock-Webster carried off the honors in Class B, by ending her round with the margin of 4 up.

of the goals were hardly the sort the sturdy netman would pass when on top of his game.

Nels Stewart, who switched allegiance this season from Montreal Maroons to Boston, and Harry Oliver, bagged the other goals for the winners.

Summary:
First period—1. Chicago, P. Thomson (Graham and Gottlieb), 2:24; 2. Boston, Stewart (Clapper), 2:39; 3. Boston, Clapper (Shore), 17:04.
Second period—4. Boston, Clapper (Stewart), 19:14.

Third period—5. Boston, Oliver, 7:08; 6. Boston, Clapper (Barry), 11:39.

New York, Nov. 23.—Aided immeasurably by an injury to the opposing goalie in the first few minutes of the game, New York Americans evened the season's count with Montreal Maroons yesterday evening by winning 5 to 3, in a loosely-played National Hockey League match.

"Flat" Walsh, Montreal goalie, was hurt in the opening minutes when he plunged out of his net to check a rush by Nick Wane, New York wingman, and was struck over the eye by Wane's stick. Walsh received a deep gash and a bruised eyeball.

His place was taken by Hugh Plaxton, former Canadian Olympic centre player.

To add to Montreal's troubles, "Baldy" Northcott, the league's leading scorer, was put out of commission for a period when he crashed into a goal post in the middle of the game.

Two major penalties were assessed against Montreal. Jimmie Ward receiving one for fighting with Normie Hines, who drew a minor, and Lionel Conacher the other for tripping to prevent a goal.

Hines started the Americans on their way to victory with a first period goal on Charlie McVeigh's assist.

After that Bill Brydge, hard-shooting defenceman from Port Arthur, held sway almost alone. Brydge scored in the second and again in the third period and assisted Johnny Sheppard to a counter in the second session and Wane to one in the third.

Summary:
First period—1. Americans, Hines (McVeigh), 12:53.
Second period—2. Americans, Brydge (Keating and Wane), 5:15; 3. Americans, Sheppard (

Heavy Hedging In Wheat Pit Causes Fractional Losses

Winnipeg, Nov. 23.—General weakness at Chicago and Liverpool put the market here in no position to absorb scattered offerings and continued heavy hedging pressure, with the result that wheat prices declined in the exchange here. Export-out of Vancouver was estimated at something less than 500,000 bushels.

November closed at 46½; December at 45½; May 49 and July at 50½. Firmer Canadian offers and high premiums for nearby Australian wheat had a steady influence in foreign markets, but did not induce importers to increase their purchases.

Following good demand from exporters and shippers for most grades of wheat during the past several days, interest in the various grades to-day was extremely dull, and spreads on some of the grades eased somewhat. Little interest was shown in early, hard, white, and apart from a few odd cars of oats and barley sold for domestic use, no business of any account was done.

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG
(By Logan & Bryan)
Winnipeg, Nov. 23.—Wheat: The market experienced a weak session to-day when prices dropped more than one cent from the previous close. A lack of export business, weakness in Chicago and extreme weakness in New York stocks and rather liberal wheat offerings in the local pit were the chief factors. There was considerable long wheat coming out from buyers of yesterday, while hedging sales were fairly heavy and was understood to reflect two days' buying in the country as line elevator companies practically did no hedging yesterday.

New York reported that export sales of Manitoba were around 800,000 bushels worked from the two seaboard. Also, a small business in hard winters but the business was not reflected in this market, although there was a little buying of May by one continental house at 49½. The market went through the daily bid for ½ of a cent, but this brought in little support. There was very little doing in the cash market, but one Chicago house was a fair buyer of No. 1 Northern and it was understood that this firm intends to take a couple of boat loads across the lakes before the close of navigation. Spreads were unchanged to a fraction lower. Country marketings yesterday were 1,025,000 bushels against 800,000 a year ago. Winnipeg futures closed ¼ to ½ lower and on the bottom.

Coarse grains—These markets were all easier in sympathy with the decline in wheat. There was little pressure on these markets outside of some scattered liquidation. Oats closed ¼ to ½ lower, barley ¼ to ½ lower, and rye ¼ to ½ lower, flax no lower, clover closing prices to ¼ lower. Liverpool due ¼ to ½ lower, based on Winnipeg.

CHICAGO
(By Logan & Bryan)
Chicago, Nov. 23.—Wheat: The market was weak to-day, opening steady then selling off rather sharply. Further liquidation was in evidence and for a time buying demand was extremely thin. Later there was some buying against bids and some short covering. The general run of news was not much changed from what it has been, but the general tone of the markets here and abroad was heavy, and with additional weakness in the stock market and the buying demand was limited. In the country as line elevator companies reported did no hedging yesterday.

Weekly Washington weather and crop reports said winter wheat conditions were good east of the Mississippi, but that in the plains states the outlook was poor, especially in the western territory, and this may be a big influence in the crop year. Russian and southeastern European reports are unfavorable. Export demand was fair and there also was good domestic demand for wheat, sales being 75,000 bushels or more from Chicago. Montreal advices said there was a large fleet of steamers waiting loadings there, Continental markets were lower yesterday and Winnipeg followed the decline here to-day. Argentine weather cables were favorable, reports mostly clear and warmer conditions. A two-sided market is likely pending evening up of the December position. With December out of the way look for a better market.

Corn—Weak after steady opening being influenced by wheat action. Offerings from the country were fair at 11,000 bushels and shipping sales were upwards of 400,000 bushels. Export bids were reported out of line and B.A. was ½ cent up at midday. The market was active buying of cash corn and this should make a broader demand for futures.

Soybeans—Were easier, offerings were increased owing to the declines in other grains.

Rye—Was weak with buying demand slow and market given by indifferent support.

A Women's Devotion, That Should Bless Those On Whom She Bestows It, Only Too Often Turns Into a Curse—For Women Feel That if They Love a Person They Have a Right to Enslave Him

DO YOU ever think how often love is a woman's undoing? How often the thing that is her greatest strength is the fatal weakness that wrecks her? How often the devotion that should be a blessing to those on whom she bestows it turns into a curse instead?

Most of the wrongs that women do in the world are committed by those who are all heart. They are sinners who are so befuddled by love that they have lost all sense of perspective and all realization of consequences. And this applies not only to silly, weak girls who sell their souls for a few kisses, but to wives and mothers who wreck their husbands' and children's lives with their affection.

For women feel that love is an excuse for any crime, and that it atones for any selfishness or lack of consideration on their part. They feel that if they love a person they have a right to enslave him, to monopolize him, to thwart his ambitions and blight his career. The symbol of oppression and tyranny should not be a military figure, with naked sword in his hand, standing on a peoples' neck, but a loving wife and mother clasping her family to her breast.

Look at the loving wives who make themselves millstones around their husbands' necks and from whom their husbands can never free themselves for an hour, for even when the poor-unfortunate victims of conjugal affection go to work they are pursued by telephone calls. Look at the husbands whose loving wives never even give them as much freedom as a dog on a leash. Look at the wives who never permit their husbands to belong to a club, or to have an evening off with other men; who have to be dragged along on every business trip, and who trail their husbands on the golf-links. Couldn't you weep tears of sympathy for a man when you hear his wife boast that they have never been separated for a single day since they were married?

And look at the mothers who are so devoted to their children that they never permit them any life of their own. The infatuated mothers who jealously keep their children separated from youngsters of their own age and are always telling how they chum with Tommy and Mamie and are Tommy's and Mamie's best friend and confidante. Look at the mothers who shut the door of opportunity in their children's faces because they love them so much they can't bear to be separated from them! Look at the mothers who keep their children from marrying because they can't endure the thought of their caring more for some one else than they do for them.

Now these women, whose lives are practically one continuous heart throbbing for their families, feel that they should be paid back in the same coin, and that their husbands and children should be as devoted to them as they are to their husbands and children. But this does not happen once in a blue moon. Love doesn't necessarily beget love. It is often the parent of indifference.

After all, love is the spice of life, not the whole meal, and there is nothing you can get fed up on quicker. To be continually caressed and petted and made love to is as nauseating as living on a diet of chocolate creams. No natural person can stand it for long.

And this explains why the man who has a perfectly devoted wife flies from her to a gold-digger or a vamp or some other hard-boiled lady. He has been loved to death. He has been smothered in affection. He has been gorged on lollypops until he is sick of love and sweets and craves roast beef and potatoes.

And if the overloving wife is more likely than any other woman to lose her husband, so is the overloving mother more sure than any other mother to have cold and ungrateful and unappreciative children. For her love makes her spoil them and cultivate egotism in them. Her love makes her so weak that she cannot bear to discipline them or control them. She indulges them in everything that it is possible to give them. She makes of herself a doormat for them to trample on. She never sees a fault in them. She lets them talk back to her and say insulting things to her.

Whenever you see children who are impudent and unappreciative of their mother, you always find that they have one of those devoted mothers who can't understand why her children treat her as they do, for she has sacrificed her entire life to them and has never done anything but pamper them since they were born.

Everyone agrees that woman's greatest fault is nagging. It is the thing that does more to alienate husbands from their wives than all the arts of all the sirens in the world. It is the thing that drives children away from home as soon as they can stand on their own feet.

They want to get away from wife and mother's never-ending question-naires. Where have you been? Where are you going? How long will you be gone? Whom did you see? What did they say? And so on and on and on. They want to escape wife and mother's never-ending adjuration. Put on your overcoat. Wrap up your throat. Watch out-croaking the street. Don't eat this. Don't do that. And so on and on.

And the pitiful part of it is that the wife and mother's nagging that runs her family crazy is just the expression of her love. She has no thought but for them. No interests save in them. Her life is so centred in them that she tries to think for them, to protect them, to be a Providence to them, and she can't understand why they resent this and crave a little personal liberty and privacy.

It is because women love too wisely but too well that love so often becomes a boomerang that annihilates them.

Exploring South America

VIII—FROM CHILI TO PERU
When we reach Santiago, the capital of Chile, we lose no time in telephoning to an old friend of mine. His name is Julio Jimenez, and I had many pleasant talks with him when he was visiting New York City. He is an author, and his books are written in Spanish, the language of Chile.

We gladly agree to visit the Jimenez family. The author's dark-eyed little daughter, Isabella, can speak only a few words of English, but Mr. Jimenez translates the questions which we ask her. She tells us that boys and girls in Santiago like to separate schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimenez—and Isabella as well—drive with us on a sight-seeing trip around the city. As we pass along the streets, we observe double-deck street cars. People ride on the roofs of the street cars as well as inside. The conductors are women, strange as it seems to us; but the cars are driven by men.

We are impressed by the fine public buildings in the capital city, Chile, Argentina and Uruguay are generally held to be the most advanced countries in South America.

After our visit to Santiago, which is happy from start to finish, we depart for the north. For hundreds of miles, we pass over land which yields nitrate of soda. The mining of this nitrate (which is shipped far and wide over the world) is one of the leading industries of Chile.

Again we view snow-capped peaks of the Andes. These mountains are higher than the Rockies. Some of the peaks are more than four miles high.

Not long after we cross the border of Peru, we look down and behold a deep gorge which has been cut by a river during the course of thousands and thousands of years.

Elizabethan Stage Conventions Told

A meeting of the North Saanich Little Theatre Association was held last week at "The Chalet," Deep Cove, and decided to apply for membership in the British Drama League. Ita Dilworth, principal of Victoria High School, spoke on "Some Foot-Notes on Presentation of Plays During the Elizabethan Age." He traced the development of professional drama from the period of troupes of traveling minstrels to the establishment in London of the first theatre in Europe. He closed the discussion by explaining, with illustrations, some of the conventions of the stage during Shakespeare's time.

IS SOCIALISM NOW OBSOLETE

Prof. E. S. Farr Questions Applicability of System at Present

Gives Description of Various Types of Socialism to Round Table Club

Had Socialism and Communism become obsolete and was there not some other system which would meet the problems of the modern era more efficiently, were two of the questions asked by Prof. E. S. Farr in a dispassionate review of Socialism before the Round Table Club at its dinner in the Empress Hotel yesterday evening.

Explaining to his hearers he was approaching the subject without bias, he proceeded with a talk in which he briefly outlined the pros and cons of the arguments relative to Socialism, sketching the various branches of that teaching.

To some, socialism was the great ideal of life. To others, it was the "Red Spectre," Prof. Farr said.

Between the two a more desirable state might be achieved, he said. With the introduction of the "laissez-faire" system, dating back to 1776, a high spirit of paternalism was developed. "Laissez-faire" was a cruel system and had always been, it had been generally discarded, he said.

INDICENT AGAINST CONDITIONS

Socialism was an indictment against the present-day incompetence and corruption. It was more, however, its followers had an almost religious zeal which they applied to a concrete programme of action. This programme varied according to the type of socialism practised.

At present on this continent the Socialists were a small but clamorous minority which would be heard from, he declared.

He sketched the various types of Socialism, touching first on the Utopian branch, men who attempted to remedy proletarian ills with bourgeois humanitarianism. Citing the St. Simon group, he noted that body aimed to help the under man by benevolence of the upper classes.

Turning to Robert Owen, he spoke of the New Lanark experiment in England which aimed to improve men by education, legislation and individual action. Owen, a factory owner, cut down hours, opposed child labor and backed education. He met many difficulties, Prof. Farr said, noting his troubles evolving from his attempt to abolish money tokens. Less worthy followers corrupted the idea. At New Harmony his idealistic aims drew a motley assortment of people who made his objective unapproachable.

Four years later, Fourier, had attempted to enable labor but his disciples ran afoul of the law when they ignored convention.

Louis Blanc, originator of the work-shop idea, had also failed, the speaker said.

MARXIAN SOCIALISM
In 1848, under Karl Marx, scientific socialism sprang into existence. Prof. Farr paid high tribute to the brain and life of Marx and his wife but criticized his theories on the ground that a manifesto of 1848 could hardly hold good in 1932.

Marx had set forth the doctrine of proletarian dictatorship. He sketched the man's economic interpretation of history, agreeing in part at least with the doctrine. Studying Marx's theory of class struggle, he noted it was difficult to-day to differentiate between the classes.

The theory of surplus value, Prof. Farr noted, ran into an obstacle in determining the value of labor in the fluctuations of commodity values depending on the laws of supply and demand. There certainly was a surplus value, but to determine its extent was virtually impossible, he said. The speaker also queried the inevitability of socialism.

Class war had not, in the speaker's opinion, increased to the point Marx had foretold. Further, the speaker pointed out that the small company, mass production, although of titanic dimensions, had not wiped out the middle sized and smaller businesses. To dispute the theory was that of the democratization of industry. There were more stockholders in 1932 than in 1929, he said, indicating the trend toward the latter idea. Was socialism inevitable if the small holders held such a part in industry? he asked.

INTERNATIONAL OUTLOOK

The internationalism of Marx appealed greatly to him, the speaker said.

Marx, he added, was not opposed to capitalism, but to the practices of capitalism. Marx had a great breadth of vision, far broader than most of his followers, he said.

Touching on state socialism, the Bismarkian idea, Prof. Farr stated it was an opposing force to the Marxians. It did, however, institute in Germany certain social legislation of benefit.

Christian socialism, illustrated by Charles Kingsley, was another Utopian idea.

Anarchism, championed by the Proudhon and Bakunin aimed to abolish government which they felt was an undesirable force. It had led to the French Syndicalism, with its programme of direct action, strikes and sabotage.

In Russia Communism and Bolshevism was straight Marxian with a little undercover origin, he spoke of the Menchevics, socialists, through democracy, and the Bolshevics, led by Lenin, who aimed for a dictatorship of the proletariat. That was to be established as a temporary measure while the world was in a state of anarchy when it was felt government was no longer necessary, Prof. Farr said.

RUSSIAN EXPERIMENT

The Russian experiment was bold, practical and shrewd. He compared the system to that of Bonaparte. Authority was centralized in Stalin, the dictator of the proletariat, had a peculiar hold on the people.

Dealing with the First Internationale he showed how the strike within the ranks and improved national franchises had broken up the move. The Second Internationale had been smashed by the World War.

He showed the similarity between the Social Democrats of Germany and the Liberals of Canada, remarking on the various planks in the two programmes which virtually coincided.

The growing strength of the Socialist bodies was shown in the representation in the German Reichstag. But there theories varied. The National Socialists were purely national and militaristic, quite contrary to socialist ethics.

Prof. Farr mentioned the Fabians in England, questioning their right to be included in the ranks of the Socialist. They were opposed to violence and were generally purely propagandists. "Let the capitalists wear themselves out and socialism will follow was their doctrine," he said.

ABOUT-FAÇE

The Labor party was avowedly non-Socialist, he said.

Turning to Italian socialism, he showed how Mussolini had led the Socialist of that land until they were a million strong and then had about-faced.

Prof. Farr criticized Scott Nearing's interpretation of Communism, saying the Communist would most probably reject parts of his doctrines in his theory of an economic plan. An economic plan could be worked out under any system and was not specially earmarked as communism.

He disagreed with Nearing's statement capitalism was decaying and communism was the only remedy.

The idea behind socialism was humanitarian, but he questioned the Socialists' achievement of a means to accomplish their aims.

He wondered whether both socialism and communism were obsolete or not.

Russia's problem was a dearth of commodities. The question in the United States was one of over-production, he said, quoting from Stuart Chase.

Citing the same man, he suggested a national plan to step up consumption to production to overcome the problems of its own genius, he said.
